CHASE TAYLOR WAS CAPTURED

One of Boys Wanted Here Was Caught in Anderson Last Night
But Chester Eludes Police.

POLICE AFTER HIM TODAY

Bondsman on First Charge Against Them Ordered to Have Chester
in Court July 12.

* TWO ARE SENTENCED. *
* Police of Chief Rosencrance *
* returned from Anderson this *
* afternoon with both Chester *
* and Chase Taylor. They and *
* their father were arraigned in *
* court at four o'clock on grand *
* jury indictments charging the *
* illegal possession of liquor. Al- *
* fred, the father, and Chester *
* pleaded guilty and were senten- *
* ced to six months at the state *
* penal farm and fined $500 each. *
* Chester pleaded not guilty to an *
* additional charge of selling li- * * quor to a minor. Chase pleaded *
* not guilty to the charge on *
* which his father and brother *
* were sentenced and his bond *
* was placed at $1,500. *

Chase Taylor, wanted by the police in connection with the raid on
the beer "party" in the Jones pasture east of the city, was caught
last night in Anderson and will be returned here this afternoon. Chief
ing for Anderson.

A special effort was made yesterday afternoon to get the Taylor
boys after the court had ordered
them produced in court by nine o'clock this morning. When it was shown that an effort was being made
to get them and that one had been caught the court order was changed
to read July 12. At that time the cases against them will be called
and unless produced in open court
the bondsman stands to lose $100 in each case.

It will be recalled that both
Chase and Chester Taylor are out on
bond on a charge of the illegal sale
of intoxicating liquor. These charges
were filed last February and O. M.
Dale went on their bonds for $100
each. When the boys skipped out Saturday night following the raid
the bondsman became uneasy and
this increased when the court ordered
the bondsman to produce them in court. It was learned that the boys
had a sister living in Anderson and
the police there were asked to look
for them.

It was learned that both the boys
were in Anderson, but Chester succeeded in eluding the police, beating
it out of Anderson on his motorcycle.
The Taylor boys are alleged to have
been selling the beer to the crowd of
thirty or thirty-five men assembled
in the Jones pasture Saturday night
and it is believed both were indicted
by the grand jury which returned six
indictments yesterday afternoon.
Their father, Alfred Taylor, was indicted as a result of the raid on his home, in which 59 bottles of beer
and seven quarts of whiskey were found.

This was the last day of this term
of court and in order to give the
officers and the bondsman time to produce the boys in court Judge
Sparks adjourned court until July 12, at which time the court will adjourn for his summer vacation. It is believed that by this time Chester
Taylor will have been caught. It is known that he was in Indianapolis
last Monday and the police believe that when he learns Chase has been caught they will have very little difficulty in getting him.

GET MONEY FROM RELATIVE

Rich Aunt of Three Local People Bequeaths Them $1,200 Each.

Word has been received here that a rich aunt of Mrs. Anna Alexander, William Rodebaugh and India Rode-baugh, all of this city, had died and had bequeathed twelve hundred dollars to each of them. Another sister, Mrs. Mary Culver, of Cincinnati will receive a like amount from the estate. The bulk of the estate, it is stated here, was willed to Dr. John Rodebaugh, relative of the deceased,
in California.

APPEALS CASE TO THE CIRCUIT COURT

Frank Richardson, Who Was Sentenced to Five Months at State
Farm at Muncie, Not Satisfied.

ADMITS THEFT OF A SUIT

Frank Richardson, 24, colored,
who, last week, entered a plea of
guilty to the charge of petit larceny,
when arraigned before Judge Gregory in city court, served notice that an appeal would be taken in his case
to the Delaware circuit court, says
the Muncie Press. The court granted the appeal without bond being given by the defendant.

Richardson was taken into custody ten minutes after he had pawned
a suit of clothes, which had been stolen from Marcus Roberts, colored, at his rooming house on East Willard street. When arraigned in court, he admitted his guilt and was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to serve five months on the state farm.
The appeal which he has taken is
based, it is said, on the severe penalty which was meted out to him.
Richardson lives at Rushville, Ind.

PIECE OF WAR BREAD IS RECEIVED HERE

Mrs. A. L. Stewart Gets Sample of
Kind Sold in Germany and Austria From Her Sister.

SHE IS NURSE IN BUDAPEST

Mrs. A. L. Stewart has received a piece of what is termed "war bread"
from her sister, Miss Kate Hertzger,
who is an American Red Cross
nurse in Budapest, and it is on display in Hargrove & Mullin's window.
The bread is dark because it is not made altogether of white flour. It
was mouldy and hard as a brick
when it arrived here.

Miss Hertzger has written Mrs.
Stewart that it is the only kind of bread which is sold in Germany or Austro-Hungary. No matter how much money they have, people in
either country can't even buy whole
wheat flour unless they buy an equal
amount of corn meal, rye flour or potatoe flour. This is done to conserve the supply of wheat.

Mrs. Stewart has not heard from
her sister since Italy entered the war
and says it is doubtful whether she
will hear again until the war
ends. Miss Hertzger has written interesting stories about the donations the Hungarian gypsies bring to
the hospitals. At one time they brought in several dozens of pajamas, highly embroidered, and each
leg measured five yards around.

Chairman A. L. Stewart Gets Letter
Stating That Delegation Will Attend Meeting Here Friday.

INTEREST OF 'AIR-LINE' ROUTE

Proposal From Marion to Hold
Meeting July 14 Regarding Connection With Lincoln Highway.

Indications today were that a
good sized crowd would be present
at the meeting here Friday afternoon
in the interest of the Dixie Highway
"airline" route from Indianapolis to Cincinnati by way of Rushville,
Brookville and Harrison, Ohio.

A. L. Stewart, chairman of the automobile routes committee of the Rush County Chamber of Commerce,
has just received a letter from John
C. Shirk, a bank president and good roads booster of Brookville, that a delegation of thirty-five or more will come from Brookville for the gathering.

The meeting will be held in the court house assembly room Friday
afternoon at one-thirty o'clock. It is called early so that the business
can be completed before the Elks-K.
of P. ball game at three o'clock. Mr.
Stewart wrote to citizens of the towns between here and Indianapolis but has no response from any of them. It is possible, however, that some of the towns will be represented.

Mr. Shirk's letter follows:
"A. L. Stewart,
Chairman Dixie Highway Commission, Rushville.

"Dear Mr. Stewart:—
"Yours of the twenty-sixth received. Am glad you are going to have a highway meeting next Friday. I will bring up a car load and we are counting on from thirty to thirty-
five going from Brookville. Sure we can put Dixie shortline route from Indianapolis through Rushville,
Brookville and Harrison to Cincinnati on the highway map if we go
after it in earnest.

"I am sure the proposed meeting
will be the means of working up an interest that will result in getting the
road on the highway map and of improving our roads. We will do all
we can to get as large a delegation
as possible from this county.

JOHN C. SHIRK."

Tom M. Morgan, business manager of the Marion Association of Commerce, has written a letter to
the Rush County Chamber of Commerce stating that on July 14 there
will be a meeting in Marion of representatives from fifteen cities to
take some active steps on the extension of the Dixie Highway from Cincinnati to the Lincoln Highway.

The cities which will likely be represented at the meeting are Cincinnati, Greensburg, Rushville, Anderson, Alexandria, Fairmount, Wabash, Milford, Warsaw, Goshen,
North Manchester, Silver Lake, Elk-
hart, LaPorte and South Bend. A line drawn on the map through the
towns named would describe the proposed road which is to be followed
to join the Dixie Highway with the Lincoln Highway.

"Every town should be represented at this meeting and there should be some tangible results," writes Mr.
Morgan. "All that is needed is active work and the route indicated
can be made a popular thoroughfare
from north to south. I want to get out a program of the meeting in the next few days."

The Rush County Chamber of Commerce will consider the advisability of sending a representative to
the meeting at the regular meeting
of the board of directors the second Friday in July.

COURT CLOSSES WITH BIG RUSH

Two Criminal Cases Dismissed, One
of Them Against P. H. McCon-
nel For Illegal Liquor Sale.

TWO NEW TRIALS DENIED

Case of J. F. Wild & Co. Sent to
Henry County on Change of Venue—Action in Other Cases.

The last day of court was marked
by a big rush of business, several
cases being dismissed and decisions
being handed down in others. Judge Sparks following the close of the terms started work on the court calendar for the September term, which opens the first Monday in Septembr.

The other remaining case on the
criminal docket against Paul Mc-Connell, proprietor of the Court House drug store, was dismissed on motion of the prosecuting attorney
because of a lack of evidence. Mc-Connell was charged with the illegal
sale of intoxicating liquor. He was found not guilty on the first case and
when this one fell flat the second
was nolle.

A criminal action against Riley
Stewart, for support of a child, was
nolle on motion of the prosecuting
attorney and at the request of the
prosecuting witness. Since the filing
of this case a divorce decree against Stewart has been modified and the trouble adjusted.

The final report was filed in the
Robert Gardner drain case by the
drainage commissioner.

Judge Sparks overruled a motion
for a new trial in the case of W. H.
Robbins and Company against E. J.
Schlichte, on an account demanding $70 and 60 days were given in which to file a bill of exceptions. The case was sent here on a change of venue from Fayette county.

By agreement judgment was rendered against George B. Jones in favor of John Q. Thomas for $48.43.
The case was on a judgment demanding $50.

In the case of J. F. Wild and
company against the City of Rush-
ville a motion and affidavit for a change of venue was filed by Wild
and Company and Judge Sparks sent
the case to Henry county and gave
ten days in which to perfect the
change. The change of venue came after the court had sustained a de-
murrer to the complaint, thus practically ending the case in this court
as far as the city was concerned.

Judge Sparks also overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of Charles A. Fletcher, et al., against
the Union Traction Company of Indiana. The case was sent here on a change of venue from Henry county
and when the case was tried the jury
found for the traction company.

The case of Harvey M. Cowing
and Mary J. Cowing against Elijah Matney, on notes and an account in which the demand was $293.35, was dismissed by agreement and the costs assessed against the defendant.

Judge Fred C. Gauze returned his finding in the quiet title and partition
suit of John C. Folger and Rufus Folger against Emerson Barnard,
finding for the defendant Barnard.
In his decision Judge Gauze held
that Barnard's title to the land was
good and should be quieted as
against the plaintiffs.

The case of F. W. Cregor against
Sam Burton, on notes demanding $225 was dismissed for lack of prosecution. The case has been on the docket since 1912 and no action
taken.

months' visit with Mr. and Mrs. J.
Feudner, of that city.

MAKES PLEA FOR PEACE

German Socialist Party Issues a Manifesto Today.

(By United Press.)
Berlin, (By Wireless to Sayville.)
June 30—The governing board of the German Socialist party, in a manifesto passed by the censor, today
called upon the German government
"in the name of humanity and culture" to begin peace negotiations.

"The German Socialists expect
that their friends in other belligerent
countries will take the same steps,"
the statement declared.

RUSSIA PROMISES TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Remarkable Manifesto Says Peace
is Impossible Until Her Enemies
Are Crushed

ISSUED FROM BEHIND LINES

(By United Press.)
Petrograd, June 30.—"With the help of God Russia will continue the
fight until her enemies are completely crushed. Until that time peace is impossible."

The Russian premier made this
emphatic statement in a manifesto
issued today. The document was made public immediately following
the remarkable conference, of the czar and his ministers, behind the great battlefield in Galicia where
the Russian armies are retreating
before the Austro-German drive.

The manifesto was generally construed here as an answer to the statements appearing in the German press that Russia was weary of the war and ready to sue for peace.

TEN AMERICANS ON TORPEDOED SHIP

Word Received This Afternoon That Dominion Liner Armenian Had Been Sunk.

HAD A CARGO OF U. S. HORSES

(By United Press.)

Washington, June 30.—Word received by the state department this afternoon stated that the Dominion Liner steamship Armenian under British registry, carrying horses
from Westport News to Great Britain, had been sunk by a torpedo off the coast of Cornwall. Twenty men were believed to be lost. Most of the victims are believed to be Americans.
In addition to the dead, ten are reported injured.

GAS CAUSES DEATH OF TWO

Three Other Members of Matt Gooley's Family May Die.

(By United Press.)

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 30.—When neighbors broke open the door of the Matt Gooley's home today, they found two dead and three unconscious from gas. The dead: Matt Gooley, 50 years; Donald Gooley, his son 10 years; Mrs. Gooley and her two daughters, Hazel 21, and Loretta, 18, are believed dying at a hospital.

The police believe that Gooley,
who was intoxicated last night, deliberately murdered all.

MEXICO WILL BE SLAYDEN THEME

Congressman From Texas, Authority on the Subject, Will Discuss Affairs of Republic.

AT CHAUTAUQUA HERE AUG. 5

Has First Hand Information of Conditions There and Has Given
Question Deep Study.

One of the timely lectures to be heard at the annual Rush county
chautauqua, which will be held in the Coliseum in the city park the first week of August, will be that by Congressman James L. Slayden, of Texas, on "The Mexican Question." He will speak Thursday afternoon, August 5.

The topic is one that is uppermost
now in the minds of most American citizens because it is far from being settled. Congressman Slayden
comes as authority on the subject.
He represented the United States as official delegate to Mexico at the centenary celebration in 1910.

Being a resident of a state on the border, he is naturally more familiar with the question than those remotely in touch with it. He has had opportunity of observing conditions
in Mexico first and can doubtless
speak with authority and knowledge
of the subject.

Congressman Slayden has made
the little republic a study and has written and spoken much on the affairs of the country. Only a few weeks ago he had an article in the
New York Independent, thus indicating that he speaks with some knowledge of the state of affairs when he
is recognized by a magazine of such standing as the Independent. His article was such as to call forth favorable editorial comment from the Independent.

He will bring to the people of Rush county information about Mexico with which they are not familiar.
He will describe graphically the deplorable condition of the people of
the land to the south and will tell of
the never ending struggle of unworthy leaders to gain control, which
has resulted in continual revolution.

With his many years of personal
contact with Mexican conditions and
with his wide observations and study
of the injustice the Mexican people
have endured, he will bear a message of more than usual interest to patrons of the chautauqua.

Congressman Slayden hails from
the fourteenth district in Texas,
which he represents in congress.

this morning to her home in Indianapolis today after attending the funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Rich of Washington township.

REPORT ON SOIL TO BE MADE SOON

U. S. Department of Agriculture Will Give Results of Survey of Delaware County, Indiana.

IT CONSISTS OF 31 PAGES

Contains Number of Suggestions For Improving Agriculture Practice in the County.

Washington, June 30.—A report on the soils of Delaware county, Indiana, will shortly be issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. This report summarizes the co-operation with the Indiana Department of Geology. The report consists of 31 pages, together with a large colored map showing the location of the 10 different soils found in the county, and also giving the location of schools, churches, public roads, railroads, and the water courses.

The flat phase of the Miami silt loam leads in point of area with 143,360 acres; the Clyde silty clay loam, second, with 53,376 acres; and the Miami silt loam third, with 26,816 acres.

The region included in the survey comprises an area of 392 square miles or 250,880 acres. This section was first permanently settled in 1820 by people who came chiefly from the State to the East and from Kentucky and located along the West Fork of White River near the present towns of Smithfield, Muncie, and New Burlington.

The early settlers found this section a dense forest of hardwood, broken only by an occasional open, swampy prairie. The natural advantages cause them to stake their claims along the larger stream courses. The streams offered an access to outside markets by rafts or flatboats, or furnished power to mills. The bottom lands, enriched annually by stream overflow, offered easy and profitable farming. Corn, because of its adaptability to such soils, became the main crop. Many thousands of dollars have been expended by private and community enterprises to reclaim the black lands along the more shallow ditches has, in recent years, been streams. The early method of open supplanted by the tide drainage.

Experiments have shown that an application of 2 or more tons to the acre of ground limestone upon clover sod before turning it under, especially upon the lighter colored soils, will increase the subsequent yields of corn. The effect of such an application will be even more apparent in the wheat and clover crops which follow the corn. Similar results have been obtained by subsoiling the clay lands or deepening the soil without turning too much raw material to the surface. A gradual deepening of the soil is generally recognized as beneficial. Too often the ground is plowed to the same depth year after year, so that a form of hardpan is produced which greatly retards the free circulation of air and moisture. The relative percentage of phosphoric acid and potash required properly to fertilize the different grades of land varies with the local conditions, but in general and lighter colored soils yield better returns from the use of phosphoric acid, while the darker colored soils give increased yields with potash. The latter usually contain sufficient nitrogen but are deficient in the other two elements of plant food.

An important factor in increasing the yields of corn is the selection of the variety best suited to the soil on which the crop is to be grown. Too often no attention is given to this matter or to the testing of seed corn. The seed to produce the best results should be strong in vitality and the kernels graded to uniform sizes in order to drop from the planter evenly. The best varieties to grow different kinds of soil should be worked out by the farmers themselves. The seed corn selected from the clay land should be planted on the clay lands so far as practicable and that selected from the black lands should also be kept for the black lands, selecting from experience the varieties best adapted to each grade of land. Well-selected home-grown seeds are generally preferable to any soil. Attention to these methods should materially increase the yields from these lands.

Wheat is not considered a paying crop commercially in the county, but its value as a nurse crop for clover warrants its continued cultivation. The lighter colored Miami soils show the greatest adaptability to this crop. Too much attention can not be given to the selection of suitable varieties of wheat for the soil, as well as a proper grading of the seed. Rotation, fertilization, treatment of seed for disease, and the combating of insects require careful attention to insure the largest returns from this crop. The Purdue Experiment Station recommends the use of 300 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing 2 per cent. nitrogen, 8 per cent. available phosphoric acid, and 2 per cent. potash. This can be applied at the time of seeding by using a drill with fertilizer attachment. When clover has been turned under from corn and the latter is followed by wheat an application of 50 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda is generally advisable, which can best be applied as a top dressing in spring. Where barnyard manure is used the most profitable results are secured when it is turned under the clover sod preceding the planting of corn.

Although oats are not generally considered a paying crop, this grain fits in well with the customary rotation and is especially valued for its straw, which, when fed for hay in conjunction with ensilage makes excellent roughage for stock.

With the increased demand for canned tomatoes the cultivation of this crop is gradually being extended. The crop fits well into the system of rotation and when properly handled gives twice the profit per acre derived from a crop of corn. Many growers are netting a profit of $70 to $100 per acre where proper cultural methods are employed. More attention should be given to the breeding of earlier varieties and to methods of maturing the crop before it is killed by frost.

The regular meeting of the commissioners comes on a holiday but will be held regardless.

Mrs. Champ Clark Celebrates Daughter's Wedding Day by Rescuing Relatives From Wreck.

Bowling Green, Mo., June 30.—Mrs. Champ Clark celebrated her daughter's wedding today by heading a relief expedition to bring to Bowling Green her two nephews and other guests who were stranded when the Chicago & Alton train on which they were passengers was derailed seven miles from here early today.

Mrs. Clark had retired when she heard other members of the household discussing in subdued tones a message they had received telling of the wreck. She dressed hurriedly and took an automobile. The wreck was a half mile from the road and Mrs. Clark climbed three barbed wire fences and pluckily made her way across the marsh to the piled-up cars.

"Port of our forces are approaching the northern border of the Taney forest."

Along the entire Galician battle-front the Russians continue steadily in retreat except at certain points southeast of Lemberg.

A message was received today stating that Miss Marie Crosby, who took suddenly sick while on her way for a visit with friends at Scranton, Pa., and was taken off the train at Crestline, Ohio, was improved and would arrive home this afternoon. Time to Sit Tight

The Newcastle Times (Democratic) is looking for a Republican newspaper that approves the recent indictments returned by the Marion county grand jury. The majority of Republican newspapers have too much gumption to try the men on the indictments before the court gets a whack at them. The Times is assuming that there was something unfair about the indictments when it is absolutely ignorant of the whole circumstance. Even Mr. Taggart says he knows nothing about it. So what's the use of the Times growing mouthy over something that no one except the officials, seems to know anything about. If it was unfair, how does the Times know it? If the Times doesn't know it had better close up.

Not to be Prorated

The billion dollar trade balance which Secretary Redfield is blowing about is not going to be prorated among the people of the United States. Don't forget that.

Mr. Redfield sought to cheer up the flagging spirits of the manufacturers of other than munitions of war, the taxpayers, and the unemployed of this country, by prophesying this huge favorable trade balance at the end of the present fiscal year, a consumation which he attributes to the Democratic administration, denying that war orders are responsible. But no man will be beguiled by this fair promise into discarding the many aggravating economies, industrial and domestic, which Democratic hard times forced upon this nation.

A billion dollars is a juicy expression which sweetens the tongue and tickles the ear, but if anyone imagines that sum is to be a cash addition to our resources his imagination lacks the salt of reason. It will be a long time before Europe will be able to pay us any such sum in gold.

Europe is paying for our exports of war munitions by establishing new credits here. She is borrowing from us the money necessary to pay for the goods which we are selling her. In some instances, American securities now owned in Europe are being returned in payment. Both these methods of payment will, of course, strengthen the credit position of the United States, and the end of the war should find us financially in the vanguard of the nations of the earth. But that will be due to the unfortunate necessities of European nations, and not to the activities of Secretary Redfield, Mr. Underwood, and the rest of the free traders.

Nor will we long be able to hold the financial supremacy thus attained, under the Democratic tariff policy, as a study of the European war will convince the most casual reader of our commercial history. Only by a return to the Republican fiscal principles can we hope to remain permanently in the front rank of commerce and finance.

Current Comments
War Material
(Providence, R. I. Journal)

The Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, addressing an association of bankers suggests caution in acclaiming the arrival of prosperity, inasmuch as the liveliest trade impulse just now, is the demand for war material.

No country ever had this kind of boom of the magnitude of the one the United States is enjoying. It is correspondingly difficult for experienced observers of trade movements to tell just what to expect from it. On the other hand, the immediate benefit to national industry, commerce and finance is unmistakably widespread, for the term "war material" comprehends an amazing variety of products.

The war demand is by no means limited to what are styled "munitions." It may even be believed that both in quantity and value, the greater commerce is in commodities of every-day use and consumption—boots and freight cars, foodstuffs and harnesses, automobiles, mules and the best of horse flesh, articles in wood and metals, textile, chemical electrical and mechanical products—about everything it might be said, produced on the farm, in the mine or by the factory, turns out to be "war material." There is, perhaps, only a single striking exception to the universality of the demand, jewelry.

But even the sinister classification "munitions" represents a surprising diversity of industry. Farm and mine and factory contribute raw material to the finished product of the ammunition makers. A fleeting newspaper paragraph mention a contract of some million pounds of alcohol for a powder factory. It is more familiar that cotton enters into the production of smokeless powder, in that form thousands of bales of short staple are being hurled from the warships and the artillery on land.

So, also, it is stated that an order for fifty-four thousand tons of steel has been placed by a group of manufacturers under contract to deliver five million shrapnel. And our peaceful barometer industry is by no means the only one to share in the profits from shrapnel. Quantities of copper are required as well as steel—an estimated twenty million pounds for this one contract, or four pounds to every shell. In this connection, it is interesting to recall that when sudden paralysis struck all industry, at the outbreak of the war, some of the copper interests implored Congress to authorize large purchases by the Government at a price arbitrarily fixed. Congress, as now appears, would have been safe if it had thus benevolently "pegged" the tumbling quotations. For, soon after, they began to mount. The richest of the copper corporations has just announced that it will distribute half-a-million dollars from the unlooked-for million dollars as a bonus to its employees and in compensation for the loss of wages due to the sudden crippling of industry last fall.

Into a shrapnel sell, too, goes zinc, with more copper, in the form of brass. The elegant machine work on this single item in the munitions list, shrapnel calls for a variety of skilled labor; and back of that, the shops that make the machines and tools that make the shrapnel are busily employed.

What will follow when the boom subsides, how quickly, or easily, this unexampled productive industry can be readjusted to a normal basis, is beyond telling. The subsidence will not long anticipate the conclusion of hostilities, but even that prayed for event is beyond the range of present speculation. Meanwhile, however, it is plain enough that the prosperity created by the amazing emergency is not detached, isolated, confined to a bare few specialized industries. The Connecticut arms factories are expanding beyond all experience in any industrial movement; but so, too, the miners of Michigan are working overtime, the zinc fields are no longer desolate, wheat is holding well above a dollar a bushel, cotton is near the magic ten cent mark, and directly or indirectly, a vast volume of capital, and a multitude of wage-earners, are employed in supplying the demand for "war material."

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

The Star's Delinquency.
(Muncie Press.)

The Indianapolis Star is entitled

to take credit for the Chicago Evening Post's espousal of the candidacy of William Hale Thompson for mayor of Chicago. Unquestionably Publisher Shafer put one over on all his Chicago contemporaries in his lonely boosting of the Thompson cause, for Thompson was elected by the biggest plurality ever given a Chicago mayorally candidate, and no paper but the Post seemed to have any knowledge of the location of the bandwagon.

But the Star's present parading of Mayor Thompson as a Progressive, and of his opponent in the nomination campaign, Judge Oleson, as a reactionary, doesn't exactly square with the facts. The truth is that Oleson was a bull mooser and Mr. Thompson was a staunch regular Republican in 1912. It was the robust Republicanism of Thompson which had most to do both with his nomination and his election.

It's a fact that Mayor Thompson is a progressive mayor. This merely proves that you can be progressive without spelling it with a capital "P." and it's a fact that you can also spell it with a capital "P" without being progressive at all.

Mayor Thompson is making good, and the Chicago Shafer paper justly gets the glory. But there isn't any overlooking the fact that Mayor Thompson was a "stand patter" in 1912, and that he ran his campaign for mayor of Chicago as an apostle of the back-to-a-protective-tariff and-old-fashioned-prosperity program.

It is a significant fact that when, after his election Mayor Thompson undertook to bring about the election of a split judiciary ticket his opponents within the Republican party, defeated when they tried to put over the Oleson candidacy, in turn defeated Thompson by advocating the election of a straight Republican judiciary ticket. It all goes to prove that 1912 political styles have changed and whereas nothing was more unpopular than robust Republicanism three years ago, today nothing draws more votes.

Maintaining a reputation for fair dealing and honest effort, is what has made the Sperry System of National Service the most successful of its kind in existence.

We shall continue to do business in the state of Indiana, and to offer our service to the merchants, and our unexcelled facilities for redemption to all collectors of the famous S.N. Green Stamps.

The trading stamp that the people of Indiana want is the S.N. Green Stamp. If they did not want it we would not be here. And the reason that the people want the S.N. Green Stamp is that there is no such word as default in the Sperry lexicon. We make no promises that we cannot keep.

SERVICE

Of the three essentials—strength, organization and service—afforded to clients of this Bank, SERVICE is not the least important.

The Bank's entire organization is permeated with the spirit of service. It is not enough to accept and safeguard the banking and trust business of clients; every effort is put forth to be of additional active service, within the Bank's proper sphere.

For example, the Bank, if appointed custodian of securities, will as agent sign ownership certificates required by the Federal Income Tax Law, collect dividends and coupons promptly as they mature, and either credit or remit the proceeds to the client; and will promptly notify him should any "rights" or other subscription privileges attach to the securities held.

Another example, clients are welcome to the Bank's facilities for investment and for investigating and analyzing the value of securities.

Many other examples of special service to clients might be mentioned, all of which would help to explain the rapid and substantial growth of this Bank's business.

SEMI-PRO GAME IS FLOURISHING

Many Cities in State Represented by Fast Teams, Which Attract Attention of Fans.

A. C. C.'s PLAY HOLD UP GAME

Indianapolis Has Poor Bunch of Teams This Year in This Class of Company.

BY MIKE COSTIN.

Despite all the talk of hard times, base ball war, etc., the semi-pro game in this state has been flourishing in nearly every city to date, and bids fair to continue to hold the fan's attention to the finish. There are very few semi-pro towns in state that have dropped well in the past, that are not doing so now. A notable exception to this, however, is Muncie, where the fans have forgotten, evidently, that they had a perfectly good semi-pro team. They supported it well during the past several years, and it is hard to understand their desertion of the team this year.

As usual, teams in the central and north parts of the state have shot to the fore on the Hoosier semi-pro battlefield. Chief among the teams that have shown considerable class are the LaPorte Beavers, Michigan City Grays, Logansport Ottos, Peru Greys, Kokomo Red Sox, Valparaiso Standards, Lafayette Red Sox and one or two others, that do not quite measure up to the standard of the teams mentioned. Several Indiana cities that were formerly represented on the semi-pro map have turned to "professional" ball, in that they have organized among themselves what they term the Indiana State League. In nearly all prominent semi-pro circles this league is believed to be a "fire-cracker"—one that it will blow up by June 4. Flora and Goodland have nifty teams, judging by their records to date, while the Marion Boosters have also been strengthened recently and now have a much better battle array than at the start of the season.

Judging by their form to date, the Peru Greys represent the class of the semi-pros. The Peruvians have won ten consecutive games, have not suffered a defeat thus far and number among their victims the Kokomo Red Sox, an aggregation they defeated four times running, and the formidable LaPorte Beavers. As the latter team has defeated both the Michigan City and Valparaiso teams, the strength of the Greys can be fairly accurately judged. Nearly all the title contenders will be taken on by the Greys before the season closes, so the "dope" won't have to be relied upon so much at the finish in determining the state semi-pro champion.

None of the Indianapolis teams can be termed of championship material (except the A. A. Indians). The Merits and Reserves represent the capital city's best, but so far haven't shown anything startling. Frankfort and Princeton claim pretty strong teams, but haven't turned in anything remarkable in the win line as yet. The Delphi Comers have been playing in streaks and cannot be rated with some of the other stronger combinations mentioned.

Cambridge City, Rushville, Connersville and Newcastle are among

the cities that have fallen for the league ball idea, but as started, they will probably be cured for the idea ere long.

Among the colored semi-pro teams of the state there isn't much arguing, as the Indianapolis A. B. C.'s appear to have the French Lick Plutos and West Bend Spurdies shaded for fair. However, the A. B. C.'s are getting little or no recognition from their white rivals, due to the excessive cash guarantee demanded by the Indianapolis colored players. As an instance: The other day the A. B. C.'s requested a game with the Peru Greys and asked for a $450 flat cash guarantee. In the same mail came a contract signed by Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, calling for the appearance of the White Sox in Peru on September 30 and the major leaguers, and probable pennant winners, asked for a $500 cash guarantee.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO NEWCASTLE

BITTER WON'T PLAY MONDAY

According to present arrangements the Rushers will play but one game in Newcastle instead of staying over for Monday. The game Sunday will be all the Rushers will play at Newcastle. For some unknown reason Manager Ritter of the Maxwell team, will not play the Monday game despite the fact that other state league teams will be in action on that date.

The Monday games however will not count in the league standing so the Rushers will have to be contented with capturing the Sunday contest. The game Sunday will be a fight for first place. If the Rushers win they will come home in first place. A special train will be run to Newcastle leaving here at 12:30 o'clock and returning leaving Newcastle at 6:30 o'clock.

WATCH FOR THE BIG PARADE FRIDAY

STARTS JUST AT TWO O'CLOCK

The parade preceeding the ball game between the Elks and the Knights of Pythias Friday afternoon promises to be a feature that should not be overlooked. Both teams are very secretive, sufficient proof, it is said, that they have something in store for the big blow-off at two o'clock. That's the time the people will be lined up along the streets watching for the mammoth pageant.

Members of each lodge will meet at their respective buildings promptly at 1:45 o'clock and the parade will start within fifteen minutes. The managers want it understood that the parade will be only a forerunner of the real thing which is to be staged at the ball park. No one doubts but that the crowd will be there. It is agreed that there will be more people than ever sat in the grandstand. All those who have not procured their tickets can get them at the box office at the grounds.

KEEPS WHITE SOX FIGHTING

Clarence Rowland Making Success of Managing Team His First Year in Big Time

IS DUE ENTIRELY TO TACT

Knows Human Nature And Applies it to His Players—Sarcasm Mixed With Praise

BY J. P. YODER
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago, Ill., June 30.—Four letters, properly arranged, tell the chief reason why a man who led a bush team last year in piloting an American League on or in constant vicinity of the P of the column this year. The four letters are T-A-C-T. The man's name is Clarence Rowland.

Somebody has said, and a lot of others picked up the saying, that Rowland's middle name is "Speed." For the edification of those who don't know you can add that Rowland's first name is "Tact."

It would be little short of human for some of the older men on the White Sox register not to have had, however deeply buried in their systems, a feeling that was antagonistic when they realized, they would have to take orders from "the bush-er." It is the same in any other line of business. Rowland has deeply realized this. And being not only a student of the game, but a student of human nature, and especially baseball human nature as well, he set out to batter down this feeling.

Ask any man on the Chicago American team today and he'll tell you that Rowland is the goods. They are for him, tooth, nail and batting eye. They'll also tell you the reason it's because Rowland knew which man to bowl out; he knew which man to slap on the back when he pulled a grand play—and which not to. He studied his men and soon knew which one needed a strong verbal poke in a soft spot to get his fighting dander up. Where he applied walloping sarcasm to this one, he plastered on a bit of appeal to another's pride, or smeared on a coating of diplomatic stuff that aroused a sense of rivalry in another.

To some of the older and more experienced players who were his heir-tage as successor of the beloved Jimmy Callahan, Rowland frankly went for advice. It made a hit. Everyone was tickled in the place he liked to be tickled.

But, an unbeliever might argue, how about George Stallings and his bustling, busy batting Braves? That's easy. Stallings, the grinder and driver, happened to have that kind of men on his team. That's the reason the Braves copped the Big Flag last year. Every man jack of them were the kind that needed that kind of leading. They got bumped where it tickled them most efficaciously to get bumped.

South Bend Fans Turn Out to Support Team

(By United Press.)

South Bend, Ind., June 30.—Enthusiasm over the new showing made by the South Bend baseball team in the Southern Michigan League, the fans today celebrated "Baseball Day." The merchants closed their business houses and shops. An automobile parade preceeded the afternoon's game with Saginaw. For the past two seasons the South Bend team has been the best attendance drawer.

(By United Press.)

Greensburg, Ind., June 30.—This was "Big Wednesday" in Greensburg. The city resembled one big sideshow with the merchants also taking in their share of the coin. There were entertainments of all sorts including fireworks and a carnival company.

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice MacDougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an ape skeleton and a living creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his room have appeared black boxes containing notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig, captured, escapes to Port Said. Quest and his party follow, and he yond into the desert. They are captured by Mongars, escape with Craig as their captive, and turn him over to Inspector French in San Francisco. He escapes in a train wreck, outgenerals his pursuers, and goes back to New York, where he dies while Quest is attempting to hypnotize him into confession.

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XXXV.

The first shock was over. Craig's body had been removed, and the girls had taken Mary, half stunned with grief, to their room. French and Quest were left alone.

"That is some disappointment," the former remarked, gloomily.

"It is a disappointment," Quest said, slowly, "which may clear the way to bigger things."

"What's in your mind now?" French inquired.

Quest shook his head. "A turmoil. First of all, where is the professor?"

"Must have scooted right away home," French suggested. "He was looking pretty sick all the time. Guess it must have been a powerful shock for him, and he isn't so young as he used to be."

"Give me that paper of Craig's again," Quest asked.

The inspector produced the document from his inner pocket, and Quest, stretching it out upon his knee, read it word for word.

"Never to communicate or to have anything to do with anyone of the name of Ashleigh, eh?" he remarked, as he handed it back again. "Rather a queer provision, that, French."

"I've been thinking that myself," the inspector admitted.

Quest glanced at the clock. "Well," he said, "if you're ready, inspector, we'll be getting along."

The two men drove to the outskirts of the city almost in silence. The professor's house seemed more than ever deserted as they drew up at the front door. They entered without ringing and crossed the hall towards the library. On the threshold Quest paused and held up his finger.

"Someone is in there," he whispered, stepping quickly forward. "Come!"

He threw open the door. The room was empty, yet both Quest and French were conscious of a curious conviction that it had been occupied within the last few seconds.

"Queer, but it seemed to me I heard someone," French muttered.

"I was sure of it," Quest replied. They stood still for a moment and listened. The silence in the empty house was almost unnatural. Quest turned away with a shrug of the shoulders.

"At any rate," he said, "Craig's dying thoughts must have been truthful. Come."

He led the way to the fireplace, went down on his knees and passed his hands over the bricks. The third one he touched, shook. He tapped it—without a doubt it was hollow. With his penknife he loosened the mortar a little and drew it out easily. The back was open. Inside was the black box.

"Craig's secret at last!" French muttered, hoarsely. "Bring it to the light, quick!"

They were unemotional men, but the moment was supreme. The key to the mystery of these tragical weeks was there in their hands! Their eyes almost devoured those few hastily scrawled words buried with so much care:

See Page 62, January Number, American Medical Journal, 1905.

They looked at one another. They repeated vaguely this most common-place of messages. As the final result of their strenuous enterprise, these cryptic words seemed pitifully inadequate. Quest's face darkened. He crumpled the paper in his fingers.

"There must be some meaning in this," he muttered. "It can't be altogether a fool's game we're on. Wait."

He moved towards a table which usually stood against the wall, but which had obviously been dragged out recently into the middle of the room. It was covered with bound volumes. Quest glanced at one and exclaimed softly:

"American Medical Journal, 1905! French, there's something in this message, after all."

He turned over the pages rapidly. Then he came to a stop. Page 61 was there; page 62 had been neatly removed with a pair of scissors.

"The professor!" he cried. "The professor's been at work here!"

The two men stood looking at one another across the table. Strange wards. There's no sign of the professor."

Quest pocketed the diary. "You're perfectly certain that he is not in this house or anywhere upon the premises?"

"Certain sure!" French replied.

Quest shrugged his shoulders. "Well, we'd better get back," he said.

They were on the point of starting, the chauffeur with his hand upon the starting handle, French with the steering wheel of the police car already in his hand. And then the little party seemed suddenly turned to stone. For a few breathless seconds not one of them moved. Out into the clammy night air came the echoes of a hideous, inhuman, blood-curdling scream. Quest was the first to recover himself. He leaped from his seat and rushed back across the empty hall into the study, followed a little way behind by French and the others. An unsuspected panel door which led into the garden stood slightly ajar. The professor, with his hand on the back of a chair, was staring at the fireplace, shaking as though with some horrible ague, his face distorted, his body curiously hunched up. He seemed suddenly to have dropped his humanity, to have fallen back into the world of some strange creature. He heard their footsteps, but he did not turn his head. His hands were stretched out in front of him as though to keep away from his sight some hateful object.

"Stop him!" he cried. "Take him away! It's Craig—his spirit! He came to me in the garage, he followed me through the grounds, he mocked at me when I hid in the tree. He's there now, kneeling before the fireplace. Why can't I kill him! He is coming! Stop him, someone!"

No one spoke or moved; no one, indeed, had the power. Then at last Quest found words.

"There is no one in the room, professor," he said, "except us."

The sound of a human voice seemed to produce a strange effect. The professor straightened himself, shook his head, his hands dropped to his side, ghastly pale, but his smile was once more the smile of the amiable naturalist.

"My friends," he said, "forgive me. I am very old, and the events of these last few hours have unnerved me. Forgive me."

He groped for a moment and sank into a chair. Quest fetched a decanter and a glass from the sideboard, poured out some wine and held it to his lips. The professor drank it eagerly.

"My dear friend," he exclaimed, "you have saved me. I have something to tell you, something I must tell you at once, but not here. I loathe this place. Let me come with you to your rooms."

"As you please," Quest answered, calmly.

He gripped Quest's arm. In silence they passed from the room, in silence they took their places once more in the automobiles, in silence they drove without a pause to Quest's rooms. The professor made his way at once to his favorite easy chair, threw off his overcoat and leaned back.

"Quest," he pronounced, "you are the best friend I have in my life! It is you who have rid me of my great burden. Tell me—help me a little with my story—have you read that page from the Medical Journal which

clear my reputation.

Quest closed the volume. "French," he decided, "we must find the professor. Will you have your men search the house and grounds immediately?"

The inspector left the room like a dazed man. They could hear him giving orders outside.

Quest hesitated for a moment. Then he turned it over. All three read again:

Ten years of horror, struggling all the while to keep him from that other self, that thing of bestiality, to keep his horrible secret from the world, to cover up his crimes, even though their shadow should rest upon me. Now Sanford Quest has come. Will this mean discovery?

"Another page," Quest said. "Don't you see where it is leading us? We have the truth here. Wait!"

He strode hastily to the door. French and one of the plain-clothes men were descending the stairs.

"Well?" Quest asked, breathlessly. "The professor is not in the house," French reported. "We are going to search the grounds."

Quest returned to the library. Lenora clung to his arm. The diary lay still upon the table.

Quest opened the volume slowly. Again they all read together:

The evil nature is growing stronger every day. He is developing a sort of ferocious cunning to help him in his crimes. He wanders about in the dark, wearing a black velvet suit with holes for his eyes, and leaving only his hands exposed. I have watched him come into a half-darkened room and one can see nothing but the hands and the eyes; sometimes if he closes his eyes, only the hands.

"Mrs. Rheinholdt!" Quest muttered. The door was suddenly opened and French entered.

"Beaten!" he exclaimed, tersely. "You haven't found him?" Quest asked.

French shook his head. "We've searched every room, every cupboard, every scrap of the cellar in the place," he announced. "We've been into every corner of the grounds, searched it all backwards and for-its coils and levers. The professor watched her. Slowly his face changed. The benevolence faded away, his teeth for a moment showed in something which was almost a snarl.

"You believe me?" he cried, turning to Quest. "You are not going to try that horrible thing on me—Professor Lord Ashleigh? I am all broken up. I am not fit for it. Look at my hands, how they shake."

"Professor," Quest said, sternly, "we are surrounded by the shadow of some terrible deeds for which as yet there is no explanation. I do not say that we mistrust you, but I ask you to submit to this test."

"I refuse!" the professor replied, harshly.

"And I insist," Quest muttered.

The professor drew a little breath. He sat back in his chair. His face became still, his lips were drawn closely together. Lenora wheeled up the machine and with deft fingers adjusted the fittings on one side. Quest himself connected it up on the other. The professor sat there like a figure of stone. The silence in the room was so intense that the ticking of the small clock upon the mantel piece was clearly audible. The very atmosphere seemed charged with the thrill and wonder of it. Never before had Quest met with resistance so complete and immovable. Sternly he concentrated the whole of his will power upon his task. Almost at once there was a change. The professor fell back in the chair. The tense self-control had passed from his features, his lips twitched. Simultaneously, the mirror for a moment was clouded—then slowly a picture upon it gathered outline and substance. There was a jungle, strange, tall trees, and brushwood so thick that it reached to the waists of the two men who were slowly making their way through it. One was the professor, clearly recognizable under his white sun helmet; the other a stranger to all of them. Suddenly they stopped. The latter had crept a yard or so ahead, his gun raised to his shoulder, his eyes fixed upon some possible object of pursuit. There was a sudden change in the professor. They saw him seize his gun by the barrel and whirl it above his head. He seemed suddenly to lose his whole identity. He crouched on his haunches, almost like an animal, and sprang at the other's throat. They could almost hear the snarl from his lips as the two men went down together into the undergrowth. The picture faded away.

"Doctor Merrill!" Lenora faltered. "Then it was not wild beasts which killed him!"

Almost immediately figures again appeared in the mirror. There was a small passage which seemed to lead from the back entrance of a house; the professor, with a black mantle, Craig followed him, pleading, expostulating. They saw the conservatory for a minute, and then blackness. The professor was leaning against a marble basin. There was nothing to be seen of him but his eyes and hands. They saw him listen for a moment or two in cold, unresponsive silence, then stretch out his hand and push Craig away. The picture glowed and faded and glowed again. Then they saw through the gloom the figure of a woman approach, a diamond necklace around her neck. They saw the hands steal out and encircle her throat—and then more darkness, silence, obscurity. The mirror was empty once more.

"Mrs. Rheinholdt's jewels!" Lenora cried. "What next? Oh! my God, what next?"

Their eyes ached with the strain, but there was not one of them who could even glance away from the mirror. It was Quest's study which slowly appeared then. The Salvation Army girl was there, talking to the professor. They saw him leave her, they saw him look back from the door, a strange, evil glance. Then the secretary entered and spoke to her. Once more the door opened. The hands were there, stretching and reaching, a paper-weight gripped in the right-hand fingers. They saw it raised above the secretary's head, they saw the other hand take the girl by the throat and push her towards the table. A wild scream broke from Lenora's lips. Quest wavered for a moment, but he held firm.

The Professor Sat There Like a Figure of Stone.

Craig has kept locked up all these years?"

"We have all read it," Quest replied.

"It was forged," the professor declared, firmly, "forged by Craig. All the years since he has blackmailed me. I have been his servant and his tool. I have been afraid to speak. At last I am free of him. Thank God!"

"Craig, after all," French muttered. Lenora stood a little apart with a faint frown upon her forehead. She touched Quest on the shoulder.

"Mr. Quest," she murmured, "he is lying!"

Quest turned his head. His lips scarcely moved.

"What do you mean?" he whispered. "He is lying!" Lenora insisted. "I tell you there's another creature there, something we don't understand. Let me bring the electro-thought transference apparatus; let us read his mind. If I am wrong, I will go down on my knees and beg for forgiveness."

Quest nodded. Lenora hastened to the farther end of the room, snatched the cloth from the instrument and wheeled down the little mirror with

DANIELS PLANS GREAT REFORM

Secretary of Navy Would Make Navy Self-Supporting by Making All Equipment

MAY GO BEFORE CONGRESS

Government Has Already Built Ships And he Says Other Supplies Should be Included

BY BOND P. GEDDES (U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Washington, D. C., June 30.—A "self supporting" navy, making its own battleships, torpedo boats, submarines, torpedoes, projectiles, armor plate, powder and all war supplies, is the ideal of Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Today he outlined to me his hopes of a naval utopia. He believes it is not only possible but probable that, with proper financial assistance and approval from Congress, realization of his plans may be reached before the end of the present administration.

"Of course" we never expect to manufacture of all our own materials the navy, we will probably always buy a certain amount of supplies needed, but is it my hope that the navy will be equipped to make in part all of the supplies it uses," Secretary Daniels stated.

"By manufacturing our own supplies we are not only largely independent of private manufacturers, avoid being 'held up' in prices, but also destroy the incentive of private manufacturing interests to bring pressure upon Congress for large appropriations in the interest of the private profit."

It is Secretary Daniels' idea that if the navy is equipped to make its own supplies, private manufacturers will not, when Congress comes to appropriating money for them, feel that as a matter of course the contracts will be let to them. It would then be uncertain whether the money would be spent in government navy yards or in private manufacturing plants. The "bouding" of Congress for large appropriations would then be largely avoided.

Secretary Daniels pointed out that the effects of such an administrative plan were already seen.

"Before the Government began to manufacture its own powder we paid as high as eighty cents a pound to private manufacturers," he said. "The price was brought down to 56 cents. This was largely because the navy found out just exactly what it cost to make powder. We then knew what was a proper price to pay, with proper profit to the manufacturer."

"By making all of our own supplies we will in the same way be able to ascertain just what they cost, and just what profit private manufacturers are making on supplies sold to the navy."

Secretary Daniels said his plans did not embrace a "government monopoly" in making navy supplies, similar to those of foreign nations. He merely proposes that the navy make part of each and every article important to its sustenance.

"Soon we shall have sufficient capacity in our own power plants," he said, "to supply all the ships and keep up reserve supplies—on the present footing of the navy, of course."

In case of war, Daniels admits, it would be necessary for the navy to purchase a great part of its powder and projectiles, as well as many ships to become naval auxiliaries. The capacity of the powder plant at Indian Head, Md., on the Potomac river a few miles below Washington will be doubled within a short time according to the navy's head. The torpedo projectile plant at Newport, R. I. will also be doubled in output capacity, he stated. Incidentally he is keeping in touch with both plants by personal visits.

In carrying out his plan for a "self supporting" navy in regard to powder and projectiles, the Secretary has more ambitious plans for the government in constructing its own dreadnoughts. He hopes to build one of the dreadnoughts Congress may authorize next winter at the League Navy Yard at Philadelphia. The Brooklyn Navy Yard has already qualified in this respect in the recent construction of the battleship New York. Incidentally, she was completed four and a half months earlier than her sister ship, the Texas, built by private contractors.

The new battleships Arizona and California are also achievements of the government employees at the Brooklyn yard. Submarines are also being built in the government's own yards as well as fuel and supply ships.

"Construction of ships in navy yards justifies an enlargement of that policy," says Secretary Daniels. "It was discouraged formerly because, by an unwise system of accounting, overhead charges, in no wise properly chargeable against new construction were added to the actual cost of construction. This made it appear that ships built in navy yards cost more than in private yards, and the facts were not in accordance with that appearance. In fact, taken as a whole, the contrary is true."

KOKOMO "DRYS" WIN BY MAJORITY OF 153

Show Gain of 53 Votes Over Election Two Years Ago Following Hottest Campaign Yet.

VISTORS JUBILANT TODAY

Kokomo, Ind., June 30.—This city was held in the "dry" column in the local option election here yesterday following one of the hardest campaigns ever fought in Kokomo, by the majority of 153 votes, a gain of 53 over the majority of two years ago.

The vote was counted rapidly, but until all returns had been made the result was in doubt. The "drys" made some big increases in the "wet" precincts. Early in the evening the precincts which went "dry" two years ago showed an increase for the "drys."

The campaign was one of the cleanest ever held in this city. Jacob F. Bergman, local bottling man, and Frank Korby, local cigar manufacturer, were managers of the "wets."

The "drys" are jubilant as a result of the victory. While many persons outside of the organization prophesied that the majority would be from 500 to 700, George W. Landon, manager of the "dry" organization, never predicted that the majority would be more than 250.

Local "wet" managers were reinforced by a large number of organizers from Indianapolis. Mr. Landon said that he was satisfied, and thought the campaign was one of the cleanest ever held in Kokomo. J. B. Joyce, who represented the "drys" in the debate with Representative Meker the "wet" orator, said he had felt all along that the "drys" would win.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

(By United Press.) Cleveland, O., June 30.—Here's a chance to start a national controversy. Some like 'em blondes and some like 'em brunettes and some like 'em after peaches with raven tresses and sparkling black eyes, but— Well, W. J. Brandy, who is in charge of the employment department at the Hippodrome Theater here, has fired all his blond ushers, girls of course, and won't hire anyone but brunettes. "Men are more susceptible to blondes," he said. "I know for we've tried 'em both. The blondes chat with admirers while theater patrons wait to be shown to their seats."

Will The Girls In New Creation Look Like Proverbial Arm Chair!

BY MARGARET MASON (Written for United Press.) Is that an old armchair I see Parading down the street Dressed in its summer cretonne slip? Well really I'll be beat!

If it's not Mrs. Robert Brown In cretonne hat and cretonne gown. She's quite the smartest thing in town So tear your cretonne draperies down And make them into garments gay. 'Tis Fashions new decree That all who bow beneath her sway Must very chintzy be.

New York, June 30.—Fashion is going to give us the slip this summer. At least she will make us look as much as possible like the cretonne slip on the wing chair and the family davenport. Gay flowered chintz and cretonne is being used in prodigal profusion not only to trim summer frocks but to create them entirely. Perky little shore jackets of bright cretonnes are putting the little silken jackets out of business as popular accessories of the summer toilette to be worn with a filmy lingerie frock. Floppy garden hats, trim sport hats and artistic picture hats are all successfully fashioned from the stuff that window curtains and bedspreads are made from.

Parasols of cretonne bloom with gay plumaged birds and cabbage sized flowers and gate topped bags of chintz add another item to its many sartorial uses. Even our young and our automobiles are not safe from this cretonne epidemic and bonnets, aprons and tiny cretonne baskets to match are offered as a complete beach outfit for the kiddie while the most update motors are being upholstered for the summer season in smart black and white block and striped cretonnes and even in floral and bird designs on black or grey back-grounds. Some vulgar and low punster even might go so far as to accuse Madame La Mode of having the chintz bug but far be it from me.

While in the upholstery and drapery department snooping around for ideas, fashion has also seized upon silk and metal fringe as a trimming novelty. On both hats and frocks she is using it with a lavish hand. Silk fringe in all colors is used for the entire crown of a hat whose brim is made of velvet. White silk fringe particularly is effective to make those soft and fluffy fringed crowns while the metallic fringe in gold or silver is used more extensively to edge the velvet brims of the newest midsummer chapeaux. Usually the trimming on these hats with metal fringe brims is a single tasseled of the same metal. The hats with the silk fringe crowns also have a penchant for tassel trimming and often the tassel finishes a scarf that knots around the crown and drops its tasseled end gracefully to the wearer's shoulder.

As a dress trimming the short silk and metallic fringe are most effective trimmings, especially edging the short jackets and highwater full skirts of the crisp taffeta dresses. Parasols and bags edged the trimmed with silk fringe to match follow closely on the fringe of fashion. Even veils have fringe borders and though you may sniff and turn up your nose at them you are bound to be carrying a fringed handkerchief soon for they are certainly are up to snuff.

Fringe has even invaded the jewelry realm and pendant earrings of scintillating golden fringe, necklaces of 14 carat fringe and gold bar corsage pins, fringe edged, are lovely nestling in the film and froth of summer fabrics.

When the tired business man comes home these nights he's going to have an awful time to tell his wife from the cook, that of course if he's lucky enough to have both. The way all the smartest frocks are effecting little aprons of organdie and Paris muslin to match up their neck frills and cuffs Milady and Milady's maid will soon be able to do a sister act.

The apron effects are very bewitching though and add just the last quaint touch to a demure little dress of grey or old blue crepe de chine with Quaker collar and cuffs of white organdie. A mustard yellow frock of pussy willow taffeta or old rose of Georgette crepe make lovely back-grounds for the frilly froth of a lace trimmed apron panel of white net and a fichu to match and the result is so youthful that the wearer looks not like a maid but a maiden.

Mrs. Mary Ford and son Harry of 421 West Fifth street are making arrangements to move to Muncie to make their future home. Later Harry will enter Central Business College which is located in that city.

What Is the Best Remedy For Constipation?

This is a question asked us many times each day. The answer is Reall Orderlies. We guarantee them to be satisfactory to you. Sold only by us, 10 cents. Lytle's Drug Store.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. UP-TO-NOW IN DESIGN

Designs as shown by some firms are more or less freakish or fadish to attract the attention of the prospective customers with scarcely a thought of their wearing appearance or correctness in proportion. But then they are merely on paper and represent but a small loss if they don't take.

HOOSIER HISTORY

(Prepared by the United Press from Records in the State Library)
From 1763 until the winter of 1778-1779 the English occupied and controlled the state of Indiana. Like the French they desired the region for the fur trade and the benefit of the Indians.

By special proclamation in 1763, the King forbade his subjects to settle in it without special permission from the crown.

Following the English rule the State of Virginia exercised jurisdiction over this territory. Her claim rested on the charter of 1609 and on Clark's conquest.

NOTE TO BE SENT HERE THIS WEEK

Reply of Germans to United States

Will be Published Here, Perhaps Before Saturday

PREPARATION IS HASTENED

Final Draft Differs Little From That

Given The United Press Here Last Week

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Berlin, June 30.—The German reply to the second American note regarding the Lusitania case will be dispatched to Washington this week. The present plan provides for publication in the United States perhaps before next Saturday.

The return of the chancellor and the foreign secretary from Vienna has hastened the preparation of the note.

From reliable sources I learned today that the final draft now under preparation differs only slightly from that given the United Press a week ago.

The preliminary draft, as outlined last week, was as follows:

First, that Germany is fighting for the freedom of the seas, but does not desire in any way to jeopardize the interest of neutrals.

Second, an expression of the appreciation of the friendship existing between Germany and the United States.

Third, acceptance of President Wilson's suggestion of a willingness to mediate between Germany and Great Britain to obtain a modification of the British blockade in return for the modification of Germany's methods of submarine warfare.

Fourth, an indication that Germany probably was misinformed in her contentions that the Lusitania was armed.

Fifth, an indication that Germany is willing to negotiate with America along the lines laid down by President Wilson in his humanity plea without entirely giving up submarine war on enemy merchantmen which

many regard as Germany's most effective sea weapon.

Sixth, an indication that any compromise to which Germany may agree regarding belligerent ships must secure to Germany the safety of her submarines from their attacks. In this connection the death of Commander Otto Weddigen and the crew of the U-29, who are alleged to have lost their lives when a British tank steamer flying the Swedish flag rammed the submarine, probably will be cited.

SEVERAL SALOONS EXPECT TO CLOSE

Bars at Hartford City May Give up Rather Than Pay Government

Licence of $25

MAY OPERATE UNTIL AUG. 1

(By United Press.)

Hartford City, Ind., June 30.—Several local saloons were expected to go out of business today although according to the state law they may operate until August 2. The reason for this is believed they will close rather than pay for new licenses at $25. This city voted dry two months ago, and the ninety-day limit expires August 2.

P. J. Long, state inspector with the state board of pharmacy let slip a statement while here recently which has set local people thinking. He said three more drug stores are to be started after the saloons have closed. Long is quoted as having said he talked informally to several saloon keepers "without introducing himself" and was told that three of them intended to go into the "blind tiger" business.

Miss Flossie Goodbar of North Sexton street, who has been seriously ill, was improved today.

One of Boys Wanted Here Was Caught in Anderson Last Night
But Chester Eludes Police.

POLICE AFTER HIM TODAY

Them Ordered to Have Chester
in Court July 12.

* TWO ARE SENTENCED. *
* Police of Chief Rosencrance *
* returned from Anderson this *
* afternoon with both Chester *
* and Chase Taylor. They and *
* their father were arraigned in *
* court at four o'clock on grand *
* jury indictments charging the *
* illegal possession of liquor. Al- *
* fred, the father, and Chester *
* pleaded guilty and were senten- *
* ced to six months at the state *
* penit farm and fined $500 each. *
* Chester pleaded not guilty to an *
* additional charge of selling li- *
* quor to a minor. Chase pleaded *
* not guilty to the charge on *
* which his father and brother *
* were sentenced and his bond *
* was placed at $1,500. *

Chase Taylor, wanted by the police in connection with the raid on
the beer "party" in the Jones pas-
ture east of the city, was caught
last night in Anderson and will be
ing for Anderson.

A special effort was made yester-
day afternoon to get the Taylor
boys after the court had ordered
them produced in court by nine
o'clock this morning. When it was
shown that an effort was being made
to get them and that one had been
caught the court order was changed
to read July 12. At that time the
cases against them will be called
and unless produced in open court
the bondsman stands to lose
$100 in each case.

It will be recalled that both
Chase and Chester Taylor are out on
bond on a charge of the illegal sale
of intoxicating liquor. These charges
were filed last February and O. M.
Dale went on their bonds for $100
each. When the boys skipped out
Saturday night following the raid
the bondsman became uneasy and
this increased when the court ordered
the bondsman to produce them in
court. It was learned that the boys
had a sister living in Anderson and
the police there were asked to look
for them.

It was learned that both the boys
were in Anderson, but Chester succeeded in eluding the police, beating
it out of Anderson on his motorcycle.
The Taylor boys are alleged to have
been selling the beer to the crowd of
thirty or thirty-five men assembled
in the Jones pasture Saturday night
and it is believed both were indicted
by the grand jury which returned six
indictments yesterday afternoon.
Their father, Alfred Taylor, was indicted as a result of the raid on his
home, in which 59 bottles of beer
and seven quarts of whiskey were
found.

This was the last day of this term
of court and in order to give the
officers and the bondsman time to produce the boys in court Judge
Sparks adjourned court until July
12, at which time the court will adjourn for his summer vacation. It is believed that by this time Chester
Taylor will have been caught. It is known that he was in Indianapolis
last Monday and the police believe
that when he learns Chase has been
caught they will have very little difficulty in getting him.

Frank Richardson, Who Was Sentenced to Five Months at State
Farm at Muncie, Not Satisfied.

ADMITS THEFT OF A SUIT

Frank Richardson, 24, colored,
who, last week, entered a plea of
guilty to the charge of petit larceny,
when arraigned before Judge Gregory in city court, served notice that
an appeal would be taken in his case
to the Delaware circuit court, says
the Muncie Press. The court granted the appeal without bond being
given by the defendant.

Richardson was taken into custody ten minutes after he had pawned a suit of clothes, which had been stolen from Marcus Roberts, colored,
at his rooming house on East Willard street. When arraigned in
court, he admitted his guilt and was
fined $10 and costs and sentenced to
serve five months on the state farm.
The appeal which he has taken is
based, it is said, on the severe penalty which was meted out to him.
Richardson lives at Rushville, Ind.

Mrs. A. L. Stewart Gets Sample of
Kind Sold in Germany and Austria From Her Sister.

SHE IS NURSE IN BUDAPEST

Mrs. A. L. Stewart has received a piece of what is termed "war bread"
from her sister, Miss Kate Hertzner,
who is an American Red Cross
nurse in Budapest, and it is on display in Hargrove & Mullin's window.
The bread is dark because it is not
made altogether of white flour. It
was mouldy and hard as a brick
when it arrived here.

Miss Hertzner has written Mrs.
Stewart that it is the only kind of
bread which is sold in Germany or Austria-Hungary. No matter how much money they have, people in
either country can't even buy whole
wheat flour unless they buy an equal
amount of corn meal, rye flour or potatoe flour. This is done to con-
serve the supply of wheat.

Mrs. Stewart has not heard from
her sister since Italy entered the war
and says it is doubtful whether she
will hear again until the war
ends. Miss Hertzner has written interesting stories about the donations the Hungarian gypsies bring to
the hospitals. At one time they brought in several dozens of pajamas, highly embroidered, and each

Chairman A. L. Stewart Gets Letter
Stating That Delegation Will Attend Meeting Here Friday.

Meeting July 14 Regarding Connection With Lincoln Highway.

Indications today were that a
good sized crowd would be present
at the meeting here Friday afternoon
in the interest of the Dixie Highway
"airline" route from Indianapolis to Cincinnati by way of Rushville,
Brookville and Harrison, Ohio.

A. L. Stewart, chairman of the
Rush County Chamber of Commerce,
has just received a letter from John
C. Shirk, a bank president and good roads booster of Brookville, that a delegation of thirty-five or more will
come from Brookville for the gathering.

The meeting will be held in the
court house assembly room Friday
afternoon at one-thirty o'clock. It
is called early so that the business
can be completed before the Elks-K.
of P. ball game at three o'clock. Mr.
Stewart wrote to citizens of the
towns between here and Indianapolis but has no response from any of
them. It is possible, however, that some of the towns will be represented.

Mr. Shirk's letter follows:
"A. L. Stewart,
Chairman Dixie Highway Commission, Rushville.

"Dear Mr. Stewart:—
"Yours of the twenty-sixth receiv-
ed. Am glad you are going to have a highway meeting next Friday. I
will bring up a car load and we are
counting on from thirty to thirty-
five going from Brookville. Sure we can put Dixie shortline route from
Indianapolis through Rushville,
Brookville and Harrison to Cincinnati on the highway map if we go
after it in earnest.

"I am sure the proposed meeting
will be the means of working up an
interest that will result in getting the
road on the highway map and of improving our roads. We will do all
we can to get as large a delegation

JOHN C. SHIRK."

Tom M. Morgan, business manager of the Marion Association of Commerce, has written a letter to
the Rush County Chamber of Commerce stating that on July 14 there
will be a meeting in Marion of representatives from fifteen cities to
take some active steps on the extension of the Dixie Highway from Cincinnati to the Lincoln Highway.

The cities which will likely be represented at the meeting are Cincinnati, Greensburg, Rushville, Anderson, Alexandria, Fairmount, War-
bash, Milford, Warsaw, Goshen,
North Manchester, Silver Lake, Elk-
hart, LaPorte and South Bend. A
line drawn on the map through the
towns named would describe the proposed road which is to be followed
to join the Dixie Highway with the Lincoln Highway.

"Every town should be represented at this meeting and there should be
some tangible results," writes Mr.
Morgan. "All that is needed is active work and the route indicated
can be made a popular thoroughfare
from north to south. I want to get
out a program of the meeting in the
next few days."

The Rush County Chamber of Commerce will consider the advisa-
bility of sending a representative to
the meeting at the regular meeting
Friday in July.

COURT CLOSSES WITH BIG RUSH

Two Criminal Cases Dismissed, One
of Them Against P. H. McCon-
nel For Illegal Liquor Sale.

Case of J. F. Wild & Co. Sent to
Henry County on Change of
Venue—Action in Other Cases.

The last day of court was marked
by a big rush of business, several
cases being dismissed and decisions
being handed down in others. Judge Sparks following the close of the term started work on the court calendar for the September term, which opens the first Monday in September.

The other remaining case on the
criminal docket against Paul Mc-
Connell, proprietor of the Court House drug store, was dismissed on
motion of the prosecuting attorney
because of a lack of evidence. Mc-Connell was charged with the illegal
sale of intoxicating liquor. He was found not guilty on the first case and
when this one fell flat the second
was nolle.

A criminal action against Riley
Stewart, for support of a child, was
nolle on motion of the prosecuting
attorney and at the request of the
prosecuting witness. Since the filing
of this case a divorce decree against Stewart has been modified and the
trouble adjusted.

The final report was filed in the
Robert Gardner drain case by the
drainage commissioner.

Judge Sparks overruled a motion
for a new trial in the case of W. H.
Robbins and Company against F. J.
Schlichte, on an account demanding
$70 and 60 days were given in which to file a bill of exceptions. The case was sent here on a change of
venue from Fayette county.

By agreement judgment was rendered against George B. Jones in favor of John Q. Thomas for $48.43.
The case was on a judgment demanding $50.

In the case of J. F. Wild and
company against the City of Rush-
ville a motion and affidavit for a change of venue was filed by Wild
and Company and Judge Sparks sent
the case to Henry county and gave
ten days in which to perfect the
change. The change of venue came
after the court had sustained a de-
murrer to the complaint, thus practically ending the case in this court
as far as the city was concerned.

Judge Sparks also overruled a
motion for a new trial in the case of Charles A. Fletcher, et al., against
the Union Traction Company of Indiana. The case was sent here on a change of venue from Henry county
and when the case was tried the jury
found for the traction company.

The case of Harvey M. Cowing
and Mary J. Cowing against Elijah
Matney, on notes and an account in
which the demand was $293.35, was dismissed by agreement and the costs assessed against the defendant.

Judge Fred C. Gauze returned his
finding in the quiet title and partition
suit of John C. Folger and Rufus Folger against Emerson Barnard,
finding for the defendant Barnard.
In his decision Judge Gauze held
that Barnard's title to the land was
good and should be quieted as
against the plaintiffs.

The case of F. W. Cregor against
Sam Burton, on notes demanding
$225 was dismissed for lack of prosecution. The case has been on the docket since 1912 and no action
taken.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will O. Feudner
leave tonight for Denver, Col., for a
months' visit with Mr. and Mrs. J.

German Socialist Party Issues a Manifesto Today.

(By United Press.)
Berlin, (By Wireless to Sayville,)
June 30—The governing board of the German Socialist party, in a mani-
festo passed by the censor, today
called upon the German government
"in the name of humanity and culture" to begin peace negotiations.
"The German Socialists expect
that their friends in other belligerent
countries will take the same steps,"
the statement declared.

Are Crushed

ISSUED FROM BEHIND LINES

(By United Press.)
Petrograd, June 30.—"With the help of God Russia will continue the
fight until her enemies are completely
crushed. Until that time peace is impossible."

The Russian premier made this
emphatic statement in a manifesto
issued today. The document was
made public immediately following
the remarkable conference, of the
czar and his ministers, behind the great battlefront in Galicia where
the Russian armies are retreating
before the Austro-German drive.

The manifesto was generally construed here as an answer to the statements appearing in the German

MEXICO WILL BE SLAYDEN THEME

Congressman From Texas, Authority on the Subject, Will Discuss Affairs of Republic.

AT CHAUTAUQUA HERE AUG. 5

Has First Hand Information of Conditions There and Has Given
Question Deep Study.

One of the timely lectures to be
heard at the annual Rush county
chautauqua, which will be held in the Coliseum in the city park the first
week of August, will be that by Congressman James L. Slayden, of Tex-
as, on "The Mexican Question." He will speak Thursday afternoon, August 5.

The topic is one that is uppermost
now in the minds of most American
citizens because it is far from being
settled. Congressman Slayden
comes as authority on the subject.
He represented the United States as
official delegate to Mexico at the centenary celebration in 1910.

Being a resident of a state on the
border, he is naturally more familiar with the question than those remotely in touch with it. He has had
opportunity of observing conditions
in Mexico first and can doubtless
speak with authority and knowledge
of the subject.

Congressman Slayden has made
the little republic a study and has
written and spoken much on the affairs of the country. Only a few weeks ago he had an article in the
New York Independent, thus indicating that he speaks with some knowledge of the state of affairs when he
is recognized by a magazine of such
standing as the Independent. His
article was such as to call forth favorable editorial comment from the Independent.

He will bring to the people of
Rush county information about Mexico with which they are not familiar.
He will describe graphically the de-
plorable condition of the people of
the land to the south and will tell of
the never ending struggle of unwor-
thy leaders to gain control, which
has resulted in continual revolution.

With his many years of personal
contact with Mexican conditions and
with his wide observations and study
of the injustice the Mexican people
have endured, he will bear a message of more than usual interest to
patrons of the chautauqua.

Congressman Slayden hails from
the fourteenth district in Texas,
which he represents in congress.

this morning to her home in Indianapo-
lis today after attending the funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Rich of Washington township.

Advertising that would lead

REPORT ON SOIL
TO BE MADE SOON

U. S. Department of Agriculture Will Give Results of Survey of Delaware County, Indiana.

IT CONSISTS OF 31 PAGES

Contains Number of Suggestions For Improving Agriculture Practice
in the County.

Washington, June 30.—A report on the soils of Delaware county, Indiana, will shortly be issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. This report summarizes the co-operation with the Indiana Department of Geology. The report consists of 31 pages, together with a large colored map showing the location of the 10 different soils found in the county, and also giving the location of schools, churches, public roads, railroads, and the water courses.

The flat phase of the Miami silt loam leads in point of area with 143,260 acres; the Clyde silty clay loam, second, with 53,376 acres; and the Miami silt loam third, with 20,816 acres.

The region included in the survey comprises an area of 392 square miles or 250,880 acres. This section was first permanently settled in 1820 by people who came chiefly from the State to the East and from Kentucky and located along the West Fork of White River near the present towns of Smithfield, Muncie, and New Burlington.

The early settlers found this section a dense forest of hardwood, broken only by an occasional open, swampy prairie. The natural advantages cause them to stake their claims along the larger stream courses. The streams offered an access to outside markets by rafts or flatboats, or furnished power to mills. The bottom lands, enriched annually by stream overflow, offered easy and profitable farming. Corn, because of its adaptability to such soils, became the main crop. Many thousands of dollars have been expended by private and community enterprises to reclaim the black lands along the more shallow ditches has, in recent years, been streams. The early method of open supplanted by the tide drainage.

Experiments have shown that an application of 2 or more tons to the acre of ground limestone upon clover soil before turning it under, especially upon the lighter colored soils, will increase the subsequent yields of corn. The effect of such an application will be even more apparent in the wheat and clover crops which follow the corn. Similar results have been obtained by subsoiling the clay lands or deepening the soil without turning too much raw material to the surface. A gradual deepening of the soil is generally recognized as beneficial. Too often the ground is plowed to the same depth year after year, so that a form of hardpan is produced which greatly retards the free circulation of air and moisture. The relative percentage of phosphoric acid and potash required properly to fertilize the different grades of land varies with the local conditions, but in general and lighter colored soils yield better returns from the use of phosphoric acid, while the darker colored soils give increased yields with potash. The latter usually contain sufficient nitrogen but are deficient in the other two elements of plant food.

An important factor in increasing the yields of corn is the selection of the variety best suited to the soil on which the crop is to be grown. Too often no attention is given to this matter or to the testing of seed corn. The seed to produce the best results should be strong in vitality and the kernels graded to uniform sizes in order to drop from the planter evenly. The best varieties to grow different kinds of soil should be worked out by the farmers themselves. The seed corn selected from the clay land should be planted on the clay lands so far as practicable and that

selected from the black lands should also be kept for the black lands, selecting from experience the varieties best adapted to each grade of land. Well-selected home-grown seeds are generally preferable to any soil. Attention to these methods should materially increase the yields from these lands.

Wheat is not considered a paying crop commercially in the county, but its value as a nurse crop for clover warrants its continued cultivation. The lighter colored Miami soils show the greatest adaptability to this crop. Too much attention can not be given to the selection of suitable varieties of wheat for the soil, as well as a proper grading of the seed. Rotation, fertilization, treatment of seed for disease, and the combating of insects require careful attention to insure the largest returns from this crop. The Purdue Experiment Station recommends the use of 300 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing 2 per cent. nitrogen, 8 per cent. available phosphoric acid, and 2 per cent. potash. This can be applied at the time of seeding by using a drill with fertilizer attachment. When clover has been turned under free corn and the latter is followed by wheat an application of 50 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda is generally advisable, which can best be applied as a top dressing in spring. Where barnyard manure is used the most profitable results are secured when it is turned under the clover sod preceding the planting of corn.

Although oats are not generally considered a paying crop, this grain fits in well with the customary rotation and is especially valued for its straw, which, when fed for hay in conjunction with ensilage makes excellent roughage for stock.

With the increased demand for canned tomatoes the cultivation of this crop is gradually being extended. The crop fits well into the system of rotation and when properly handled gives twice the profit per acre derived from a crop of corn. Many growers are netting a profit of $70 to $100 per acre where proper cultural methods are employed. More attention should be given to the breeding of earlier varieties and to methods of maturing the crop before it is killed by frost.

Bowling Green, Mo., June 30.—Mrs. Champ Clark celebrated her daughter's wedding today by heading a relief expedition to bring to Bowling Green her two nephews and other guests who were stranded when the Chicago & Alton train on which they were passengers was derailed seven miles from here early today.

Mrs. Clark had retired when she heard other members of the household discussing in subdued tones a message they had received telling of the wreck. She dressed hurriedly and took an automobile. The wreck was a half mile from the road and Mrs. Clark climbed three barbed wire fences and pluckily made her way across the marsh to the piled-up cars.

Time to Sit Tight

The Newcastle Times (Democratic) is looking for a Republican newspaper that approves the recent indictments returned by the Marion county grand jury. The majority of Republican newspapers have too much gumption to try the men on the indictments before the court gets a whack at them. The Times is assuming that there was something unfair about the indictments when it is absolutely ignorant of the whole circumstance. Even Mr. Taggart says he knows nothing about it. So what's the use of the Times growing mouthy over something that no one except the officials, seems to know anything about. If it was unfair, how does the Times know it? If the Times doesn't know it had better close up.

Not to be Prorated

The billion dollar trade balance which Secretary Redfield is blowing about is not going to be prorated among the people of the United States. Don't forget that.

Mr. Redfield sought to cheer up the flagging spirits of the manufacturers of other than munitions of war, the taxpayers, and the unemployed of this country, by prophesying this huge favorable trade balance at the end of the present fiscal year, a consummation which he attributes to the Democratic administration, denying that war orders are responsible. But no man will be beguiled by this fair promise into discarding the many aggravating economic, industrial and domestic, which Democratic hard times forced upon this nation.

A billion dollars is a juicy expression which sweetens the tongue and tickles the ear, but if anyone imagines that sum is to be a cash addition to our resources his imagination lacks the salt of reason. It will be a long time before Europe will be able to pay us any such sum in gold.

Europe is paying for our exports of war munitions by establishing new credits here. She is borrowing from us the money necessary to pay for the goods which we are selling her. In some instances, American securities now owned in Europe are being returned in payment. Both these methods of payment will, of course, strengthen the credit position of the United States, and the end of the war should find us financially in the vanguard of the nations of the earth. But that will be due to the unfortunate necessities of European nations, and not to the activities of Secretary Redfield, Mr. Underwood, and the rest of the free traders.

Nor will we long be able to hold the financial supremacy thus attained, under the Democratic tariff policy, as a study of the European war will convince the most casual reader of our commercial history. Only by a return to the Republican fiscal principles can we hope to remain permanently in the front rank of commerce and finance.

+ War Material +

(Providence, R. I. Journal)
The Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, addressing an association of bankers suggests caution in acclaiming the arrival of prosperity, inasmuch as the liveliest trade impulse just now, is the demand for war material.

No country ever had this kind of boom of the magnitude of the one the United States is enjoying. It is correspondingly difficult for experienced observers of trade movements to tell just what to expect from it. On the other hand, the immediate benefit to national industry, commerce and finance is unmistakably widespread, for the term "war material" comprehends an amazing variety of products.

The war demand is by no means limited to what are styled "munitions." It may even be believed that both in quantity and value, the greater commerce is in commodities of every-day use and consumption—boots and freight cars, foodstuffs and harnesses, automobiles, mules and the best of horse flesh, articles in wood and metals, textile, chemical electrical and mechanical products—about everything it might be said, produced on the farm, in the mine or by the factory, turns out to be "war material." There is, perhaps, only a single striking exception to the universality of the demand, jewelry.

But even the sinister classification "munitions" represents a surprising diversity of industry. Farm and mine and factory contribute raw material to the finished product of the ammunition makers. A fleeting newspaper paragraph mentions a contract of some million pounds of alcohol for a powder factory. It is more familiar that cotton enters into the production of smokeless powder, in that form thousands of bales of short staple are being hurled from the warships and the artillery on land.

So, also, it is stated that an order for fifty-four thousand tons of steel has been placed by a group of manufacturers under contract to deliver five million shrapnel. And our peaceful barometer industry is by no means the only one to share in the profits from shrapnel. Quantities of copper are required as well as steel—an estimated twenty million pounds for this one contract, or four pounds to every shell. In this connection, it is interesting to recall that when sudden paralysis struck all industry, at the outbreak of the war, some of the copper interests

implored Congress to authorize large purchases by the Government at a price arbitrarily fixed. Congress, as now appears, would have been safe if it had thus benevolently "pegged" the tumbling quotations. For, soon after, they began to mount. The richest of the copper corporations has just announced that it will distribute half-a-million dollars from the unlooked-for million dollars as a bonus to its employees and in compensation for the loss of wages due to the sudden crippling of industry last fall.

Into a shrapnel sell, too, goes zinc, with more copper, in the form of brass. The elegant machine work on this single item in the munitions list, shrapnel calls for a variety of skilled labor; and back of that, the shops that make the machines and tools that make the shrapnel are busily employed.

What will follow when the boom subsides, how quickly, or easily, this unexampled productive industry can be readjusted to a normal basis, is beyond telling. The subsidence will not long anticipate the conclusion of hostilities, but even that prayed for event is beyond the range of present speculation. Meanwhile, however, it is plain enough that the prosperity created by the amazing emergency is not detached, isolated, confined to a bare few specialized industries. The Connecticut arms factories are expanding beyond all experience in any industrial movement; but so, too, the miners of Michigan are working overtime, the zinc fields are no longer desolate, wheat is holding well above a dollar a bushel, cotton is near the magic ten cent mark, and directly or indirectly, a vast volume of capital, and a multitude of wage-earners, are employed in supplying the demand for "war material."

+ What Our Neighbors + + Are Talking About +

The Star's Delinquency.
(Muncie Press.)
The Indianapolis Star is entitled

to take credit for the Chicago Evening Post's espousal of the candidacy of William Hale Thompson for mayor of Chicago. Unquestionably Publisher Shafer put one over on all his Chicago contemporaries in his lonely boosting of the Thompson cause, for Thompson was elected by the biggest plurality ever given a Chicago mayoralty candidate, and no paper but the Post seemed to have any knowledge of the location of the bandwagon.

But the Star's present parading of Mayor Thompson as a Progressive, and of his opponent in the nomination campaign, Judge Oleson, as a reactionary, doesn't exactly square with the facts. The truth is that Oleson was a bull mooser and Mr. Thompson was a staunch regular Republican in 1912. It was the robust Republicanism of Thompson which had most to do both with his nomination and his election.

It's a fact that Mayor Thompson is a progressive mayor. This merely proves that you can be progressive without spelling it with a capital "P." and it's a fact that you can also spell it with a capital "P" without being progressive at all.

Mayor Thompson is making good, and the Chicago Shafer paper justly gets the glory. But there isn't any overlooking the fact that Mayor Thompson was a "stand patter" in 1912, and that he ran his campaign for mayor of Chicago as an apostle of the back-to-a-protective-tariff and-old-fashioned-prosperity program.

It is a significant fact that when, after his election Mayor Thompson undertook to bring about the election of a split judiciary ticket his opponents within the Republican party, defeated when they tried to put over the Oleson candidacy, in turn defeated Thompson by advocating the election of a straight Republican judiciary ticket. It all goes to prove that 1912 political styles have changed and whereas nothing was more unpopular than robust Republicanism three years ago, today nothing draws more votes.

SERVICE

Of the three essentials—strength, organization and service—afforded to clients of this Bank, SERVICE is not the least important.

The Bank's entire organization is permeated with the spirit of service. It is not enough to accept and safeguard the banking and trust business of clients; every effort is put forth to be of additional active service, within the Bank's proper sphere.

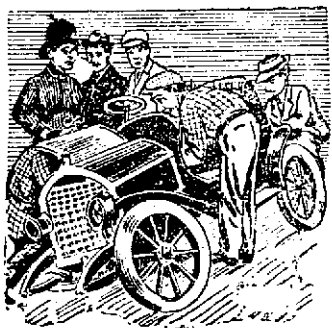

For example, the Bank, if appointed custodian of securities, will as agent sign ownership certificates required by the Federal Income Tax Law, collect dividends and coupons promptly as they mature, and either credit or remit the proceeds to the client; and will promptly notify him should any "rights" or other subscription privileges attach to the securities held.

Another example, clients are welcome to the Bank's facilities for investment and for investigating and analyzing the value of securities.

Many other examples of special service to clients might be mentioned, all of which would help to explain the rapid and substantial growth of this Bank's business.

SEMI-PRO GAME IS FLOURISHING

Many Cities in State Represented by Fast Teams, Which Attract Attention of Fans.

A. C. C.'s PLAY HOLD UP GAME

Indianapolis Has Poor Bunch of Teams This Year in This Class of Company.

BY MIKE COSTIN.

Despite all the talk of hard times, base ball war, etc., the semi-pro game in this state has been flourishing in nearly every city to date, and bids fair to continue to hold the fan's attention to the finish. There are very few semi-pro towns in state that have dropped well in the past, that are not doing so now. A notable exception to this, however, is Muncie, where the fans have forgotten, evidently, that they had a perfectly good semi-pro team. They supported it well during the past several years, and it is hard to understand their desertion of the team this year.

As usual, teams in the central and north parts of the state have shot to the fore on the Hoosier semi-pro battlefield. Chief among the teams that have shown considerable class are the LaPorte Beavers, Michigan City Greys, Logansport Ottos, Peru Greys, Kokomo Red Sox, Valparaiso Standards, Lafayette Red Sox and one or two others, that do not quite measure up to the standard of the teams mentioned. Several Indiana cities that were formerly represented on the semi-pro map have turned to 'professional' ball, in that they have organized among themselves what they term the Indiana State League. In nearly all prominent semi-pro circles this league is believed to be a "fire-cracker"—one that it will blow up by June 4. Flora and Goodland have nifty teams, judging by their records to date, while the Marion Boosters have also been strengthened recently and now have a much better battle array than at the start of the season.

Judging by their form to date, the Peru Greys represent the class of the semi-pros. The Peruvians have won ten consecutive games, have not suffered a defeat thus far and number among their victims the Kokomo Red Sox, an aggregation they defeated four times running, and the formidable LaPorte Beavers. As the later team has defeated both the Michigan City and Valparaiso teams, the strength of the Greys can be fairly accurately judged. Nearly all the title contenders will be taken on by the Greys before the season closes, so the "dope" won't have to be relied upon so much at the finish in determining the state semi-pro champion.

None of the Indianapolis teams can be termed of championship material (except the A. A. Indians). The Merits and Reserves represent the capital city's best, but so far haven't shown anything startling. Frankfort and Princeton claim pretty strong teams, but haven't turned in anything remarkable in the win line as yet. The Delphi Corners have been playing in streaks and cannot be rated with some of the other stronger combinations mentioned.

the cities that have fallen for the league ball idea, but as started, they will probably be cured for the idea ere long.

Among the colored semi-pro teams of the state there isn't much arguing, as the Indianapolis A. B. C.'s appear to have the French Lick Plutos and West Bend Spurdies shaded for fair. However, the A. B. C.'s are getting little or no recognition from their white rivals, due to the excessive cash guarantee demanded by the Indianapolis colored players. As an instance: The other day the A. B. C.'s requested a game with the Peru Greys and asked for a $450 flat cash guarantee. In the same mail came a contract signed by Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, calling for the appearance of the White Sox in Peru on September 30 and the major leaguers, and probable pennant winners, asked for a $500 cash guarantee.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO NEWCASTLE

RITTER WON'T PLAY MONDAY

According to present arrangements the Rushers will play but one game in Newcastle instead of staying over for Monday. The game Sunday will be all the Rushers will play at Newcastle. For some unknown reason Manager Ritter of the Maxwell team, will not play the Monday game despite the fact that other state league teams will be in action on that date.

The Monday games however will not count in the league standing so the Rushers will have to be contented with capturing the Sunday contest. The game Sunday will be a fight for first place. If the Rushers win they will come home in first place. A special train will be run to Newcastle leaving here at 12:30 o'clock and returning leaving Newcastle at 6:30 o'clock.

WATCH FOR THE BIG PARADE FRIDAY

STARTS JUST AT TWO O'CLOCK

The parade preceeding the ball game between the Elks and the Knights of Pythias Friday afternoon promises to be a feature that should not be overlooked. Both teams are very secretive, sufficient proof, it is said, that they have something in store for the big blow-off at two o'clock. That's the time the people will be lined up along the streets watching for the mammoth pageant. Members of each lodge will meet at their respective buildings promptly at 1:45 o'clock and the parade will start within fifteen minutes. The managers want it understood that the parade will be only a forerunner of the real thing which is to be staged at the ball park. No one doubts but that the crowd will be there. It is agreed that there will be more people than ever sat in the grandstand. All those who have not procured their tickets can get them at the box office at the grounds.

KEEPS WHITE SOX FIGHTING

Clarence Rowland Making Success of Managing Team His First Year in Big Time

BY J. P. YODER

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago, Ill., June 30.—Four letters, properly arranged, tell the chief reason why a man who led a bush team last year in piloting an American League on or in constant vicinity of the P of the column this year. The four letters are T-A C-T. The man's name is Clarence Rowland.

Somebody has said, and a lot of others picked up the saying, that Rowland's middle name is "Speed." For the edification of those who don't know you can add that Rowland's first name is "Tact."

It would be little short of human for some of the older men on the White Sox register not to have had, however deeply buried in their systems, a feeling that was antagonistic when they realized, they would have to take orders from "the bush-er." It is the same in any other line of business. Rowland has deeply realized this. And being not only a student of the game, but a student of human nature, and especially baseball human nature as well, he set out to batter down this feeling.

Ask any man on the Chicago American team today and he'll tell you that Rowland is the goods. They are for him, tooth, nail and batting eye. They'll also tell you the reason it's because Rowland knew which man to slap on the back when he pulled a grand play—and which not to. He studied his men and soon knew which one needed a strong verbal poke in a soft spot to get his fighting dander up. Where he applied walloping sarcasm to this one, he plastered on a bit of appeal to another's pride, or smeared on a coating of diplomatic stuff that aroused a sense of rivalry in another.

To some of the older and more experienced players who were his heir-apparee as successor of the beloved Jimmy Callahan, Rowland frankly went for advice. It made a hit. Everyone was tickled in the place he liked to be tickled.

But, an unbeliever might argue, how about George Stallings and his bustling, busy batting Braves? That's easy. Stallings, the grinder and driver, happened to have that kind of men on his team. That's the reason the Braves copped the Big Flag last year. Every man jack of them were the kind that needed that kind of leading. They got bumped where it tickled them most efficaciously to get bumped.

The BLACK BOX

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice MacDougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an ape skeleton and a living creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his rooms have appeared black boxes containing notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig, captured, escapes to Port Said. Quest and his party follow, and beyond into the desert. They are captured by Mongars, escape with Craig as their captive, and turn him over to Inspector French in San Francisco. He escapes in a train wreck, outgenerals his pursuers, and goes back to New York, where he dies while Quest is attempting to hypnotize him into confession.

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XXXV.

The first shock was over. Craig's body had been removed, and the girls had taken Mary, half stunned with grief, to their room. French and Quest were left alone.

"That is some disappointment," the former remarked, gloomily.

"It is a disappointment," Quest said, slowly, "which may clear the way to bigger things."

"What's in your mind now?" French inquired.

"A turmoil. First of all, where is the professor?"

"Must have scooted right away home," French suggested. "He was looking pretty sick all the time. Guess it must have been a powerful shock for him, and he isn't so young as he used to be."

"Give me that paper of Craig's again," Quest asked.

The inspector produced the document from his inner pocket, and Quest, stretching it out upon his knee, read it word for word.

"Never to communicate or to have anything to do with anyone of the name of Ashleigh, eh?" he remarked, as he handed it back again. "Rather a queer provision, that, French."

"I've been thinking that myself," the inspector admitted.

Quest glanced at the clock.

"Well," he said, "if you're ready, inspector, we'll be getting along."

The two men drove to the outskirts of the city almost in silence. The professor's house seemed more than ever deserted as they drew up at the front door. They entered without ringing and crossed the hall towards the library. On the threshold Quest paused and held up his finger.

"Someone is in there," he whispered, stepping quickly forward. "Come!"

He threw open the door. The room was empty, yet both Quest and French were conscious of a curious conviction that it had been occupied with in the last few seconds.

"Queer, but it seemed to me I heard someone," French muttered.

"I was sure of it," Quest replied.

They stood still for a moment and listened. The silence in the empty house was almost unnatural. Quest turned away with a shrug of the shoulders.

"At any rate," he said, "Craig's dying thoughts must have been truthful. Come."

He led the way to the fireplace, went down on his knees and passed his hands over the bricks. The third one he touched, shook. He tapped it—without a doubt it was hollow. With his penknife he loosened the mortar a little and drew it out easily. The back was open. Inside was the black box.

"Craig's secret at last!" French muttered, hoarsely. "Bring it to the light, quick!"

They were unemotional men, but the moment was supreme. The key to the mystery of those tragical weeks was there in their hands! Their eyes almost devoured those few hastily scrawled words buried with so much care:

See Page 62, January Number, American Medical Journal, 1905.

They looked at one another. They repeated vaguely this most commonplace of messages. As the final result of their strenuous enterprise, these cryptic words seemed pitifully inadequate. Quest's face darkened. He crumpled the paper in his fingers.

"There must be some meaning in this," he muttered. "It can't be altogether a fool's game we're on. Wait."

He moved towards a table which usually stood against the wall, but which had obviously been dragged out recently into the middle of the room. It was covered with bound volumes. Quest glanced at one and exclaimed softly:

"American Medical Journal, 1905!"

French, there's something in this message, after all."

He turned over the pages rapidly. Then he came to a stop. Page 61 was there; page 62 had been neatly removed with a pair of scissors.

"The professor!" he cried. "The professor's been at work here!"

The two men stood looking at one another across the table. Strange

wards. There's no sign of the professor."

Quest pocketed the diary.

"You're perfectly certain that he is not in this house or anywhere upon the premises?"

"Certain sure!" French replied.

Quest shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, we'd better get back," he said.

They were on the point of starting, the chauffeur with his hand upon the starting handle, French with the steering wheel of the police car already in his hand. And then the little party seemed suddenly turned to stone. For a few breathless seconds not one of them moved. Out into the clammy night air came the echoes of a hideous, inhuman, blood-curdling scream. Quest was the first to recover himself. He leaped from his seat and rushed back across the empty hall into the study, followed a little way behind by French and the others. An unsuspected panel door which led into the garden stood slightly ajar. The professor, with his hand on the back of a chair, was staring at the fireplace, shaking as though with some horrible ague, his face distorted, his body curiously hunched up. He seemed suddenly to have dropped his humanity, to have fallen back into the world of some strange creatures. He heard their footsteps, but he did not turn his head. His hands were stretched out in front of him as though to keep away from his sight some hateful object.

"Stop him!" he cried. "Take him away! It's Craig—his spirit! He came to me in the garage, he followed me through the grounds, he mocked at me when I hid in the tree. He's there now, kneeling before the fireplace. Why can't I kill him! He is coming! Stop him, someone!"

No one spoke or moved; no one, indeed, had the power. Then at last Quest found words.

"There is no one in the room, professor," he said, "except us."

The sound of a human voice seemed to produce a strange effect. The professor straightened himself, shook his head, his hands dropped to his side, ghastly pale, but his smile was once more the smile of the amiable naturalist.

"My friends," he said, "forgive me. I am very old, and the events of these last few hours have unnerved me. Forgive me."

He groped for a moment and sank into a chair. Quest fetched a decanter and a glass from the sideboard, poured out some wine and held it to his lips. The professor drank it eagerly.

"My dear friend," he exclaimed, "you have saved me. I have something to tell you, something I must tell you at once, but not here. I loathe this place. Let me come with you to your rooms."

"As you please," Quest answered, calmly.

He gripped Quest's arm. In silence they passed from the room, in silence they took their places once more in the automobiles, in silence they drove without a pause to Quest's rooms. The professor made his way at once to his favorite easy chair, threw off his overcoat and leaned back.

"Quest," he pronounced, "you are the best friend I have in my life! It is you who have rid me of my great burden. Tell me—help me a little with my story—have you read that page from the Medical Journal which

"French," he decided, "we must find the professor. Will you have your men search the house and grounds immediately?"

The inspector left the room like a dazed man. They could hear him giving orders outside.

Quest hesitated for a moment. Then he turned it over. All three read again:

Ten years of horror, struggling all the while to keep him from that other self, that thing of bestiality, to keep his horrible secret from the world, to cover up his crimes, even though their shadow should rest upon me. Now Sanford Quest has come. Will this mean discovery?

He strode hastily to the door. French and one of the plain-clothes men were descending the stairs.

"Well?" Quest asked, breathlessly.

"The professor is not in the house," French reported. "We are going to search the grounds."

Quest returned to the library. Lenora clung to his arm. The diary lay still upon the table.

Quest opened the volume slowly. Again they all read together:

The evil nature is growing stronger every day. He is developing a sort of ferocious cunning to help him in his crimes. He wanders about in the dark, wearing a black velvet suit with holes for his eyes, and leaving only his hands exposed. I have watched him come into a half-darkened room and one can see nothing but the hands and the eyes; sometimes if he closes his eyes, only the hands.

"Mrs. Rheinholdt!" Quest muttered. The door was suddenly opened and French entered.

"Beaten!" he exclaimed, tersely. "You haven't found him?" Quest asked.

French shook his head.

"We've searched every room, every cupboard, every scrap of the cellar in the place," he announced. "We've been into every corner of the grounds, searched it all backwards and forwards. There's no sign of the professor."

Quest pocketed the diary.

"You're perfectly certain that he is not in this house or anywhere upon the premises?"

"Certain sure!" French replied.

Quest shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, we'd better get back," he said.

They were on the point of starting, the chauffeur with his hand upon the starting handle, French with the steering wheel of the police car already in his hand. And then the little party seemed suddenly turned to stone. For a few breathless seconds not one of them moved. Out into the clammy night air came the echoes of a hideous, inhuman, blood-curdling scream. Quest was the first to recover himself. He leaped from his seat and rushed back across the empty hall into the study, followed a little way behind by French and the others. An unsuspected panel door which led into the garden stood slightly ajar. The professor, with his hand on the back of a chair, was staring at the fireplace, shaking as though with some horrible ague, his face distorted, his body curiously hunched up. He seemed suddenly to have dropped his humanity, to have fallen back into the world of some strange creatures. He heard their footsteps, but he did not turn his head. His hands were stretched out in front of him as though to keep away from his sight some hateful object.

"Stop him!" he cried. "Take him away! It's Craig—his spirit! He came to me in the garage, he followed me through the grounds, he mocked at me when I hid in the tree. He's there now, kneeling before the fireplace. Why can't I kill him! He is coming! Stop him, someone!"

No one spoke or moved; no one, indeed, had the power. Then at last Quest found words.

"There is no one in the room, professor," he said, "except us."

The sound of a human voice seemed to produce a strange effect. The professor straightened himself, shook his head, his hands dropped to his side, ghastly pale, but his smile was once more the smile of the amiable naturalist.

"My friends," he said, "forgive me. I am very old, and the events of these last few hours have unnerved me. Forgive me."

He groped for a moment and sank into a chair. Quest fetched a decanter and a glass from the sideboard, poured out some wine and held it to his lips. The professor drank it eagerly.

"My dear friend," he exclaimed, "you have saved me. I have something to tell you, something I must tell you at once, but not here. I loathe this place. Let me come with you to your rooms."

"As you please," Quest answered, calmly.

He gripped Quest's arm. In silence they passed from the room, in silence they took their places once more in the automobiles, in silence they drove without a pause to Quest's rooms. The professor made his way at once to his favorite easy chair, threw off his overcoat and leaned back.

"Quest," he pronounced, "you are the best friend I have in my life! It is you who have rid me of my great burden. Tell me—help me a little with my story—have you read that page from the Medical Journal which

Quest closed the volume.

"French," he decided, "we must find the professor. Will you have your men search the house and grounds immediately?"

The inspector left the room like a dazed man. They could hear him giving orders outside.

Quest hesitated for a moment. Then he turned it over. All three read again:

Ten years of horror, struggling all the while to keep him from that other self, that thing of bestiality, to keep his horrible secret from the world, to cover up his crimes, even though their shadow should rest upon me. Now Sanford Quest has come. Will this mean discovery?

He strode hastily to the door. French and one of the plain-clothes men were descending the stairs.

"Well?" Quest asked, breathlessly.

"The professor is not in the house," French reported. "We are going to search the grounds."

Quest returned to the library. Lenora clung to his arm. The diary lay still upon the table.

Quest opened the volume slowly. Again they all read together:

The evil nature is growing stronger every day. He is developing a sort of ferocious cunning to help him in his crimes. He wanders about in the dark, wearing a black velvet suit with holes for his eyes, and leaving only his hands exposed. I have watched him come into a half-darkened room and one can see nothing but the hands and the eyes; sometimes if he closes his eyes, only the hands.

"Mrs. Rheinholdt!" Quest muttered. The door was suddenly opened and French entered.

"Beaten!" he exclaimed, tersely. "You haven't found him?" Quest asked.

French shook his head.

"We've searched every room, every cupboard, every scrap of the cellar in the place," he announced. "We've been into every corner of the grounds, searched it all backwards and for-

"We have all read it," Quest replied.

"It was forged," the professor declared, firmly, "forged by Craig. All the years since he has blackmailed me. I have been his servant and his tool. I have been afraid to speak. At last I am free of him. Thank God!"

"Craig, after all," French muttered.

Lenora stood a little apart with a faint frown upon her forehead. She touched Quest on the shoulder.

Quest turned his head. His lips scarcely moved.

DANIELS PLANS GREAT REFORM

MAY GO BEFORE CONGRESS

Government Has Already Built Ships And he Says Other Supplies Should be Included

BY BOND P. GEDDES
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., June 30.—A

"self supporting" navy, making its own battleships, torpedo boats, submarines, torpedoes, projectiles, armor plate, powder and all war supplies, is the ideal of Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Today he outlined to me his hopes of a naval utopia. He believes it is not only possible but probable that, with proper financial assistance and approval from Congress, realization of his plans may be reached before the end of the present administration.

"Of course we never expect to manufacture of all our own materials the navy, we will probably always buy a certain amount of supplies needed, but is it my hope that the navy will be equipped to make in part all of the supplies it uses," Secretary Daniels stated.

"By manufacturing our own supplies we are not only largely independent of private manufacturers, avoid being 'held up' in prices, but also destroy the incentive of private manufacturing interests to bring pressure upon Congress for large appropriations in the interest of the private profit."

It is Secretary Daniels' idea that if the navy is equipped to make its own supplies, private manufacturers will not, when Congress comes to appropriating money for them, feel that as a matter of course the contracts will be let to them. It would then be uncertain whether the money would be spent in government navy yards or in private manufacturing plants. The "hounding" of Congress for large appropriations would then be largely avoided.

Secretary Daniels pointed out that the effects of such an administrative plan were already seen.

"Before the Government began to manufacture its own powder we paid as high as eighty cents a pound to private manufacturers," he said. "The price was brought down to 56 cents. This was largely because the navy found out just exactly what it cost to make powder. We then knew what was a proper price to pay, with proper profit to the manufacturer."

"By making all of our own supplies we will in the same way be able to ascertain just what they cost, and just what profit private manufacturers are making on supplies sold to the navy."

Secretary Daniels said his plans did not embrace a "government monopoly" in making navy supplies, similar to those of foreign nations. He merely proposes that the navy make part of each and every article important to its sustenance.

"Soon we shall have sufficient capacity in our own power plants," he said, "to supply all the ships and keep up reserve supplies—on the present footing of the navy, of course."

In case of war, Daniels admits, it would be necessary for the navy to purchase a great part of its powder and projectiles, as well as many ships to become naval auxiliaries. The capacity of the powder plant at Indian Head, Md., on the Potomac river a few miles below Washington will be doubled within a short time according to the navy's head. The torpedo projectile plant at Newport, R. I. will also be doubled in output capacity, he stated. Incidentally he is keeping in touch with both plants by personal visits.

In carrying out his plan for a "self supporting" navy in regard to powder and projectiles, the Secretary has more ambitious plans for the government in constructing its own dreadnoughts. He hopes to build one of the dreadnoughts Congress may authorize next winter at the League Navy Yard at Philadelphia. The Brooklyn Navy Yard has already qualified in this respect in the recent construction of the battleship New York. Incidentally, she was completed four and a half months earlier than her sister ship, the Texas, built by private contractors.

The new battleships Arizona and California are also achievements of the government employees at the Brooklyn yard. Submarines are also being built in the government's own yards as well as fuel and supply ships.

"Construction of ships in navy yards justifies an enlargement of that policy, says Secretary Daniels. "It was discouraged formerly because, by an unwise system of accounting, overhead charges, in no wise properly chargeable against new construction were added to the actual cost of construction. This made it appear that ships built in navy yards cost more than in private yards, and the facts were not in accordance with that appearance. In fact, taken as a whole, the contrary is true."

KOKOMO "DRYS" WIN BY MAJORITY OF 153

Show Gain of 53 Votes Over Election

Two Years Ago Following Hot-test Campaign Yet.

VISTORS JUBILANT TODAY

Kokomo, Ind., June 30.—This city was held in the "dry" column in the local option election here yesterday following one of the hardest campaigns ever fought in Kokomo, by the majority of 153 votes, a gain of 53 over the majority of two years ago.

The vote was counted rapidly, but until all returns had been made the result was in doubt. The "drys" made some big increases in the "wet" precincts. Early in the evening the precincts which went "dry" two years ago showed an increase for the "drys."

The campaign was one of the cleanest ever held in this city. Jacob P. Bergman, local bottling man, and Frank Korby, local cigar manufacturer, were managers of the "wets."

The "drys" are jubilant as a result of the victory. While many persons outside of the organization prophesied that the majority would be from 500 to 700, George W. Landon, manager of the "dry" organization, never predicted that the majority would be more than 250.

Local "wet" managers were reinforced by a large number of organizers from Indianapolis. Mr. Landon said that he was satisfied, and thought the campaign was one of the cleanest ever held in Kokomo. J. B. Joyce, who represented the "drys" in the debate with Representative Meker the "wet" orator, said he had felt all along that the "drys" would win.

"Men are more susceptible to blondes," he said. "I know for we've tried 'em both. The blondes chat with admirers while theater patrons wait to be shown to their seats."

Will The Girls In New Creation Look Like Proverbial Arm Chair?

BY MARGARET MASON

(Written for United Press.)

Is that an old armchair I see

Parading down the street

Dressed in its summer cretonne slip?

Well really I'll be beat!

If it's not Mrs. Robert Brown

In cretonne hat and cretonne gown.

She's quite the smartest thing in town

So tear your cretonne draperies

down

And make them into garments gay.

'Tis Fashions new decree

That all who bow beneath her sway

Must very chintzy be.

New York, June 30.—Fashion is going to give us the slip this summer.

At least she will make us look as much as possible like the cretonne slip on the wing chair and the family

davenport. Gay flowered chintz

and cretonne is being used in prodigal

profusion not only to trim summer

frocks but to create them entirely.

Perky little shore jackets of bright cretonnes are putting the little silken jackets out of business as popular accessories of the summer

toilette to be worn with a filmy lingerie frock. Floppy garden hats, trim sport hats and artistic picture

hats are all successfully fashioned

from the stuff that window curtains

and bed-spreads are made from.

Parasols of cretonne bloom with gay plumed birds and cabbage

sized flowers and gate topped bags

of chintz add another item to its many sartorial uses. Even our young and our automobiles are not safe from this cretonne epidemic

and bonnets, aprons and tiny cre-

tonne baskets to match are offered as a complete beach outfit for the

zall kiddie while the most uplate motors

are being upholstered for the summer season in smart black and white

block and striped cretonnes and even

in floral and bird designs on black or grey back-grounds. Some vulgar

and low punster even might go so far as to accuse Madame La Mode

of having the chintz bug but far be it from me.

While in the upholstery and drapery department snooping around for ideas, fashion has also seized upon

silk and metal fringe as a trimming

novelty. On both hats and frocks

she is using it with a lavish hand.

Silk fringe in all colors is used for the entire crown of a hat whose brim is made of velvet. White silk fringe particularly is effective to make those soft and fluffy fringe crowns while the metallic fringe in gold or silver is used more extensively to edge the velvet brims of the newest mid-summer chapeaux. Usually the trimming on these hats

with metal fringe brims is a single tassel of the same metal. The hats with the silk fringe crowns also have a penchant for tassel trimming and often the tassel finishes a scarf that knots around the crown and drops its tasseled end gracefully to the wearer's shoulder.

As a dress trimming the short silk and metallic fringe are most effective trimmings, especially edging the short jackets and highwater full skirts of the crisp taffeta dresses. Parasols and bags edged the trimmed with silk fringe to match followed closely on the fringe of fashion. Even veils have fringe borders and though you may sniff and turn up your nose at them you are bound to be carrying a fringed handkerchief soon for they are certainly are up to snuff.

Fringe has even invaded the jewelry realm and pendant earrings of scintillating golden fringe, necklaces of 14' carat fringe and gold bar corsage pins, fringe edged, are lovely nestling in the film and froth of summer fabrics.

When the tired business man comes home these nights he's going to have an awful time to tell his wife from the cook, that of course if he's lucky enough to have both. The way all the smartest frocks are effecting little aprons of organdie and Paris muslin to match up their neck frills and cuffs Milady and Milady's maid will soon be able to do a sister act.

The apron effects are very bewitching though and add just the last quaint touch to a demure little dress of grey or old blue crepe de chine with Quaker collar and cuffs of white organdie. A mustard yellow frock of pussy willow taffeta or old rose of Georgette crepe make lovely back-grounds for the frilly froth of a lace trimmed apron panel of white net and a firm to match and the result is so youthful that the wearer looks not like a maid but a maiden.

Mrs. Mary Ford and son Harry of 421 West Fifth street are making arrangements to move to Muncie to make their future home. Later Harry will enter Central Business College which is located in that city.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. HOOSIER HISTORY

(Prepared by the United Press from Records in the State Library)
From 1763 until the winter of 1778-1779 the English occupied and controlled the state of Indiana. Like the French they desired the region for the fur trade and the benefit of the Indians.

By special proclamation in 1763, the King forbade his subjects to settle in it without special permission from the crown.
Following the English rule the State of Virginia exercised jurisdiction over this territory. Her claim rested on the charter of 1609 and on Clark's conquest.

NOTE TO BE SENT HERE THIS WEEK

Reply of Germans to United States Will be Published Here. Perhaps Before Saturday

PREPARATION IS HASTENED

Final Draft Differs Little From That Given The United Press Here Last Week

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Berlin, June 30.—The German reply to the second American note regarding the Lusitania case will be dispatched to Washington this week. The present plan provides for publication in the United States perhaps before next Saturday.

The return of the chancellor and the foreign secretary from Vienna has hastened the preparation of the note.

From reliable sources I learned today that the final draft now under preparation differs only slightly from that given the United Press a week ago.

The preliminary draft, as outlined last week, was as follows:

First, that Germany is fighting for the freedom of the seas, but does not desire in any way to jeopardize the interest of neutrals.

Second, an expression of the appreciation of the friendship existing between Germany and the United States.

Third, acceptance of President Wilson's suggestion of a willingness to mediate between Germany and Great Britain to obtain a modification of the British blockade in return for the modification of Germany's methods of submarine warfare.

Fourth, an indication that Germany probably was misinformed in her contentions that the Lusitania was armed.

Fifth, an indication that Germany is willing to negotiate with America along the lines laid down by President Wilson in his humanity plea without entirely giving up submarine war on enemy merchantmen which

many regard as Germany's most effective sea weapon.

Sixth, an indication that any compromise to which Germany may agree regarding belligerent ships must secure to Germany the safety of her submarines from their attacks. In this connection the death of Commander Otto Weddigen and the crew of the U-29, who are alleged to have lost their lives when a British tank steamer flying the Swedish flag rammed the submarine, probably will be cited.

Bars at Hartford City May Give up Rather Than Pay Government Licence of $25

MAY OPERATE UNTIL AUG. 1

(By United Press.)

Hartford City, Ind., June 30.—Several local saloons were expected to go out of business today although according to the state law they may operate until August 2. The reason for this is believed they will close rather than pay for new licenses at $25. This city voted dry two months ago, and the ninety-day limit expires August 2.

P. J. Long, state inspector with the state board of pharmacy let slip a statement while here recently which has set local people thinking. He said three more drug stores are to be started after the saloons have closed. Long is quoted as having said he talked informally to several saloon keepers "without introducing himself" and was told that three of them intended to go into the "blind tiger" business.

Miss Flossie Goodbar of North Sexton street, who has been seriously ill, was improved today.
